Post-War Program

THE ARMY SIGNAL CORPS

MAJ. GEN. SPENCER B. AKIN
Chief Signal Officer, U. S. Army

THE foundation of the present and future activities of the Signal Corps are found in the requirements that are expected to develop in any future national emergency. The likelihood that there will be little or no time for preparation for such an emergency, together with the character, speed, and possible destructive effects of present and future weapons, are all factors which have a direct or indirect influence upon the Signal Corps' signal communications, research and development, mobilization, procurement, supply, and photographic activities.

In the signal communication field the Signal Corps program for the future is actually being forged, day by day, in the laboratories where new weapons and equipment are being developed, in the field where the tactics and techniques of the application of these weapons and equipment are being perfected, and in the evolution of the National Defense organization where the inter-relationships of the Armed Forces and details of the military command structures are being determined. These activities dictate the character of the communications required.

For high command, intelligence, occupation force, and relief purposes there exists the continuing need for an extensive integrated civil-military communication system. The Army Command and Administrative System, extending from the Far East to the Middle East, with its modern facilities partially fulfills this need. The equipment, facilities, and personnel required for its prompt extension and for the alternate locations of its principal signal centers are, of course, desirable.

In the "Combat" and "Theater" systems requirements exist for military communications capable of carrying, with the greatest possible speed, all types of traffic resulting from any future type of warfare. The system must permit the transmission of a volume of traffic greater than anything previously experienced, over greater distances, with a reliability equal to or greater than that of the commercial systems. It must be capable of being installed and operated in any part of the world, inhabited or not, in any climate, in the shortest possible time. This means that the equipment must be air-transportable with the consequent drastic limitations on size, weight, and personnel. Simplicity in operation and ease of main-

Speedy Action on UMT Seen by Sen. Gurney

Returning this week from a tour of inspection of the Experimental Universal Military Training Unit at Ft. Knox, Ky., Senator Chan Gurney (R-S.D.), Chairman of the Senate Committee on Armed Services, announced that he is "1,000 per cent stronger for UMT" than he ever has been and that he believes its supporters will be able to get action on it early in the second session of Congress.

"However," Senator Gurney told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, "we must have the whole picture before us, and there can be no committee meeting before we have this picture presented to us by the three Departments. Then we can begin hearings. The Departments may have a complete plan to present by the opening of Congress in January, but may not have it until February."

The Chairman made his trip to the Ft. Knox experimental UMT unit with Senators Morris and Maybank, also members of the Armed Services Committee. They were accompanied by Maj. Gen. Clark L. Ruffner, USA, Deputy Chief of the Legislative and Liaison Division of the Department of the Army, and Col. Frank A. Allen and Lt. Col. Sam Cornet.

"We must know the probable cost of UMT and in addition the cost of the National Guard and Reserve plans," Senator Gurney told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL. "We must know how mandatory it is to have these reserve components. We must know what it will cost to give the Government adequate protection. We must lay out a strategic plan, and have a policy, domestic and foreign, that will assure the best protection. Each Department of the Armed Services must present a plan for itself that will guarantee victory. These plans will be coordinated by the Joint Staff and the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and with unification of the Services as a guarantee there can be no conflict. We shall have a complete plan from the three Services and their justification for the plan."

Senator Gurney was enthusiastic over the UMT experiment that has been carried on at Fort Knox, Ky.

Continuing, Senator Gurney said, "The UMT experiment at Fort Knox is on the right track. I challenge anyone to find anything wrong with it. And what has been done there on a small scale can be done nationally. It not only builds soldiers but better soldiers result. The 6 months' training given the cadre of 600 has made them proficient in the use of all weapons. It has taught them the art of getting along with men from other States. It has taught them discipline and self-government as they have had the responsibility of judging the offenses of the personnel by trials, and of carrying on company punishment."

"Beyond this," said Senator Gurney, "through the influence of the fine chaplains and the commanding officers the soldiers have developed into a remarkably clean lot of men."

Rep. Van Zandt Hits Housing

Returning from a two-week tour of active duty in the Pacific, Representative James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa.), member of the House Committee on Armed Services, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL this week that housing for Service personnel in Hawaii is a disgrace and calls for immediate institution of a permanent construction program.

Representative Van Zandt, who served in World War I as an enlisted man in the Navy and in World War II as a commissioned officer rising to the grade of Captain, gave high praise to the functioning of unification, declaring that there cannot be another Pearl Harbor disaster unless there is a failure in the human elements.

"I was impressed by the coordination of the Services based on the unification of the Services, and unless there is a failure in the human elements involved there cannot be another Pearl Harbor. The only possibility of a repetition of that would be due to the failure of Congress and the people to implement the continuing means of defense. The effectiveness of a unified command and of unification was illustrated by the rescues accomplished recently when a transport plane had to make a forced landing near the island of Oahu. Twenty minutes after information was received of the happening, airplanes were in the air, ships were diverted from their courses, and the rescue was under way, due to the joint action of the Air Force, Navy, and Coast Guard. The same quick action could take place in case of another Pearl Harbor attack."

"The present radar equipment there is obsolete. It must be modernized. All the installations must be fully manned—they are now skeletonized."

"The shortage of gasoline is damaging

Congress' Interest in Service Pay Increases

While the Secretary of Defense's office has been informing inquiring members of Congress that the Joint Study on Service Pay is still undergoing revision and not yet in its final form, the legislators' interest in the problem of providing more adequate pay for the Armed Forces continues to increase.

As reported in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL last week, two members of the House of Representatives—Representatives Paul W. Shafer (R-Mich.) and Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) have asked Secretary of Defense Forrestal for copies of the Joint Pay Report. This week Senator Burnett R. Maybank (D-S.C.), always an ardent advocate of the Services' interests, began action in the Senate both by announcing that he would ask the Senate Committee on Armed Services to request a copy of the pay report and by inquiring into the matter himself.

It is thus assured that both the Senate and House Committees on Armed Services will have copies of the Pay report before them for study and action at the earliest possible moment without having the delay that would ensue if the Department had to initiate action itself by sending the study and recommendations through the Bureau of the Budget before transmitting it to Congress as an administration measure.

Senator Maybank stated that he is particularly interested in whatever will spur enlistments in the Armed Forces. As for a revision of the pay-schedules of officers, the Senator said he would be interested in seeing the suggested revision, and that he would ask the Senate Committee on Armed Services to request a copy of the report as made to the Secretary of Defense. Later, Senator Maybank informed the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL that he had been advised officially that the report had been returned to the Departments for revision. He stated, however, that he will keep track of the matter for future consideration.

Representative Leroy Johnson (R-Calif.), chairman of the sub-committee on Retirements, of the House Committee on Armed Services, told the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL as follows:

"I have heard that the defense Departments have prepared a report advocating an increase in pay. These recommendations will be considered by me with an open mind and with a view of doing justice to the persons who will obtain the increases as well as to the taxpayers who must pay for them."

"One thing that has given me concern in these matters is the following: almost every proposal we receive providing for increased benefits to some segment of our defense system is supported exclusively by those who have a personal interest in having the legislation passed. What I would like is some testimony by a wholly disinterested person. We would like an objective analysis by some intelligent and informed witnesses who not only consider the situation of those who are to be benefited but also that of the taxpayer and the public. This not to

Civilian Components

New York Times—"Secretary Forrestal's appointment of an interdepartmental committee to study and make recommendations on the cumbersome and overlapping reserve systems within the military establishment, especially the duplication of effort between the National Guard and the Organized Reserves, gives hope for a long-overdue reorganization and unification of our second line of defense."

Washington Star—"The study of reserve components of the armed forces ordered by Defense Secretary Forrestal is a logical further step in the defense co-ordination program authorized by the merger law. One of the fields in which there has been destructive competition is in the recruitment of members for new units."

Milwaukee Journal—"Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan has spoken forth emphatically in support of a proposal to merge the Army and Air Force reserves with the National Guard. Both reserves and the guard are just now trying to reorganize and recruit units up to authorized strength. The outcome of these campaigns is still in doubt."

Worcester Telegram—"Secretary Forrestal of the new Department of Defense wants a more effective reserve system for the Army. If he gets it, this may mean a radical change in the control of the National Guard. The whole subject is now under study by a committee of department officials."

Washington Post—"Defense Secretary Forrestal's appointment of an interdepartmental committee to study a more uniform program of the various reserve units is encouraging evidence of the extent to which unification is progressing. What the country needs is not uniformity of thinking, but unity of approach to the overall problem of its defense."

Study Disability Retirements

"The policy-making subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee has agreed that the matter of the tax exempt retirement of Regular Army and Navy officers for disability reasons, should be investigated," Representative Dewey Short, (R-Mo.), announced, this week.

The next day it was also announced that President Truman has asked Secretary of Defense Forrestal to supply him with a list of all Army, Navy, and Air Force officers retired for physical disability with a view to instituting a study to determine how disabled some of them are.

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, AUS, Military Aide to the President, stated "There's been a lot of criticism about General Meyers and the President wants to have the list at his command. Some of the names in it might have to be looked into."

Many members of Congress expressed dismay that Meyers' retirement pay was tax exempt because he was retired for physical disability. Many believe, however, that all retired officers who have given their life's Service to the country should have their pay tax exempt instead of being forced to refund part of it to their Government at a time when their income already has been cut virtually in half (through loss of all allowances and reduction of base pay to three-quarters). Furthermore, officers of the Army and Air Force should be given the same privileges of retirement in their highest war rank just as is now done for the Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard. Under present conditions officers and enlisted men of the Army and Air Force are forced to revert to their lower permanent ranks on retirement unless they are retired for physical disability.

The Department of the Army disclosed at about the same time that a total of 2,505 Regular Army and Air Force officers have been retired for disability since June 30, 1940. This figure was almost twice the amount of those retired for non-disability during the same period. It was also revealed that 26,377 non-regular officers of the two services, had been certified to the Veterans Administration for retirement pay for disability reasons during the same period.

Representative Short, a member of the policy making subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee, said that the committee "feels that a closer check should be kept on the whole system," adding:

"Far too many officers have been getting retired for disability in comparison with the number retired for non-disability reasons."

"It strikes me as a strange situation when high-ranking officers, retired for disability, thus giving them untaxed pensions, are able to go out into civilian life and hold down high-salaried jobs."

"The investigation will not be intended to deprive worthy officers of the retirement benefits they have earned but will have a wholesome effect and either prove or disprove the stories that have gone the rounds. We will determine whether there is need for corrective measures—and it appears that there is—and immediately make needed changes in legislation if that is the source of the trouble."

Division Associations

Veterans of the 3d Armored (Spearhead) Division have formed a division association. It has been announced by Brig. Gen. Doyle O. Hickey, Acting President of the Association, and former division commander.

Plans have been made to hold the first annual reunion in Chicago, Ill., next 8, 9 and 10 April.

The Case of Gen. Meyers

After weeks of testimony before the Senate War Investigating Committee, the United States moved against Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, USA-Ret., on several fronts this week.

The Department of Justice began laying his case before a Federal Grand Jury in Washington, D. C., with a view to securing criminal indictments.

Further steps will be taken, the Department of Justice let it be known, to attack him on his income tax returns.

Secretary of the Air Force Symington announced that at his request the War Department (under whose jurisdiction Meyers still comes) has cancelled the order awarding him the Distinguished Service Medal and the Legion of Merit and also had stopped his retired pay.

As to these latter two moves, taken in advance of any court martial or civil court convictions, Mr. Symington said that they were done "despite some question of legality" and that Meyers could go to court to argue over the legal refinements.

Mr. Symington also said that in the future all criminal investigations will be made for the Air Force by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Furthermore, he said, J. Edgar Hoover, director of the FBI, and Mr. Frank J. Wilson, retired former head of the Secret Service, had promised to assist the Air Force in tightening its inspection organization.

Still awaiting decision is the question as to whether there should be a court martial in addition to the civil court action. This might be based on the 96th Article of War—conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman.

Although an Air officer, General Meyers' actions were committed while the Air Force was still part of the Army. Furthermore, all retired officers of the Army and Air Force are still under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Army, the transfer orders thus far issued not having covered any retired personnel. As a matter of fact, it is quite likely that this condition will continue for some time until the Air Force is able to set up for itself a system of administering and paying retired personnel.

Meyers entered the service as a private first class in the Aviation Section Signal Enlisted Reserve Corps on 2 Feb. 1918, being commissioned in the Air Service National Army two months later. In 1920 he was commissioned a first lieutenant in the Air Service, Regular Army, rising to the permanent grade of lieutenant colonel in 1942, at which time he was already a temporary brigadier general, becoming a temporary major general in February of 1944. He was retired 31 Aug. 1945 for disability in line of duty, which action entitled him to retirement in his temporary grade of major general and full exemption from the Federal Income Tax on his retired pay.

General of the Army H. H. Arnold, USA-Ret., appeared before the Senate Committee near the close of its hearings, pointing out that he has faith that the bulk of the tremendous war air funds "was spent honestly and well," and that this exception should be "dealt with by military and civil agencies with all the severity this sordid evidence warrants." Then he made a plea that the Air Force not be permitted to "suffer beyond its just deserts."

"Nothing," General Arnold said, "in the career of one man can or should be permitted to take the meaning from the war-time sacrifice and effort of the Air Force men and women; or to harm the future effectiveness of the United States

Air Force."

Senator Ferguson, chairman of the subcommittee, thanked General Arnold for his presentation and added:

"We realize, and we must all realize that there were millions of men in this service, that we should not judge the millions who went forth to fight and to produce, by the mistakes of a few. If we are to protect those that are honest then we must look into these procurement methods to find, as you have so ably expressed it, if there is one bad apple, that that bad apple must be removed at the earliest possible date so others will not be destroyed by that influence."

"I just want to say that this Committee has found in its own legislative halls the need for exposure. If we go back just a short time, this Committee had the duty, while it was unpleasant as this is, to expose the action of the Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee of the House, Mr. May, in war contracts. It also brought to public light the acts of Senator Bilbo from Mississippi and he was stopped at the door of the Senate and not seated in the last session. It is also to be noted that Mr. Coffey's activities in war contracts were exposed to the public light that people might judge what was going on. We are not unmindful of those things, but if this Committee can bring about improvements that will be made both in procurement procedures and in the setting up within the military establishment an alert and vigorous investigative agency to act as an effective watchdog of public funds, then we will have accomplished something."

Admiral Ramsey to Cincpac

Reports that Admiral DeWitt Ramsey will be appointed Commander in Chief of the Pacific were recently confirmed at Pearl Harbor by Admiral Louis P. Denfeld, who will vacate the post next month to become Chief of Naval Operations.

Admiral Ramsey, now Deputy Chief of Naval Operations, was born at Whipple Barracks, Ariz., 2 Oct. 1888. He was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1912 and, following flight training, was designated Naval Aviator number 45 on 31 May 1917. He has served continuously with naval aviation since that time.

During World War II, Admiral Ramsey commanded the aircraft carrier Saratoga from 12 May 1942 until 27 Oct. 1942. From November of 1942 until August 1943 he commanded a Task Force with the Saratoga as his flagship. He later served successively as Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, Chief of Staff to Commander of the Fifth Fleet, Pacific, Deputy Commander in Chief, Pacific Fleet and Pacific Ocean Areas, and Vice Chief of Naval Operations.

Admiral Ramsey is expected to take over his new position in January 1948.

Navy Honors Notre Dame

Notre Dame, Ind.—The U. S. Navy is "the first-line of defense for all of the democratic nations of the world," the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, C.S.C., President of the University of Notre Dame, said here 20 Nov. at exercises marking the presentation of a bronze plaque to Notre Dame by the Department of the Navy.

The plaque was awarded in recognition of Notre Dame's "meritorious services" to the U. S. Navy in World War II when more than 25,000 naval officers and officer candidates were trained at Notre Dame, and important research performed for the Navy in the university's laboratories. Rear Adm. J. Cary Jones, USN, Commandant of the Ninth Naval District, made the presentation and warmly praised Notre Dame's many contributions to the war effort.

A citation accompanying the plaque read, in part, as follows:

"The efficiency, patriotism and cooperative spirit demonstrated by the University of Notre Dame in training NROTC, Navy V-12 and USNR Midshipmen units has been recognized by the entire nation. The men you provided have served their country in keeping with the best traditions of the naval service."

Capt. Anthony L. Danis, USN, Commandant of the Notre Dame Naval ROTC, introduced Admiral Jones.

Service Pay

impugn the motives or the methods of those who advocate this legislation. I have found the service witnesses informed, honest and fair. But obviously in considering changes in our pay schedules we must take a broader view of the matter than the mere personal interest of those who are to receive the increase. Perhaps that type of witness is unavailable, but I think we could find some if we tried. We must consider the financial load the country is bearing, our debt, our ability to make good the billions of bonds which we have pledged ourselves to repay and other matters.

"All of us are anxious to do what we can to help Army and Navy personnel combat the high cost of living. But, remember a military career really is a cradle to grave bread ticket, when we consider the retirement benefits we give. All a man has to do is to take care of his work and behave himself and he knows he will be well taken care of till God calls him away."

Representative Jack Z. Anderson (R-Calif.), said: "Now that the merger of the Services is in full force, we need to make it realistic and see to it that there is equal pay for the same grades in all the Services. I believe the pay structure should be gone over from top to bottom."

Representative Carl T. Durham (D-N.C.), expressed himself as follows: "There are discrepancies in the pay schedules, any they should be corrected. The pay agreed on, at the first session of the 80th Congress, for medical and dental officers is out of line. No attention has been given to the over-all picture. The pay schedules should be revised."

Hits Housing

and destroying the efficiency of pilots in the Air Force. The flying time of the personnel is below the minimum because of the need of gasoline.

"The housing conditions there for personnel of the Army and Navy is a disgrace. They are asked to live in shantytown houses, Quonset huts, and prefabricated huts, without toilet facilities. Living conditions are quite unbearable. Similar places could be hired elsewhere for $15 or $20 a month. Added to this, officers lose their quarters rental allowances because the so-called quarters occupied by them are owned by the Government."

"The Government should decide immediately the future of Hawaii. If it is to be maintained as a defense base, all equipment should be modernized, and a permanent housing program should be started immediately. This would aid in raising much-needed morale among civilians and Service personnel."

"As for naval defense there, there is no such thing as a Pacific Fleet. The only ship operating from Pearl Harbor is the aircraft carrier Valley Forge supported by destroyers and two divisions of submarines."

Sec. Symington's Statement

Following is the full text of the statement by W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force, upon recent testimony by and concerning Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, USA-Ret., before the subcommittee of the Special Senate Committee investigating the National Defense program:

"The new United States Air Force, created under the National Security Act of 1947, is about two months old. It is a tragic fact that as we have been welding together this new Department, the healthy condition of which is now universally accepted as vital to the security of America, we have also been forced to read and contemplate, day by day, for many weeks, the unfolding of one of the most shocking scandals ever exposed in the history of any branch of our Government, the sordid story of Bennett E. Meyers. For some time it has been our best judgment that no comment or report on the facts should be made until the Senate Committee had completed the Meyers hearing. Under the circumstances it has not been pleasant waiting.

"As representatives of not only those millions of men who either have served or are serving in the Air Force, but also of the memory of those tens of thousands who died in service, we now want to report in considerable detail about this case.

"Matters of this character affect the heart as well as the head. How the Air Force feels with respect to the former can perhaps be revealed by the attached correspondence marked Tab A; namely, Captain Friedberg's letter of us of November 14; and our reply of November 19.

Air Force Grateful

"The Air Force is very grateful to the Senate War Investigating Committee for its long and painstaking efforts to bring out the facts in this case. Such detailed examination and documentation were required as could not have been accomplished by the Air Force. We believe the Committee has performed a signal service to the people; and we will be very glad to work on with Senator Ferguson to whatever extent he and the Committee believe it is advisable to continue any aspect of investigation.

"We are equally sure, however, that, just as the Committee is anxious to bring this man to justice, so also they are equally anxious to remove any semblance of stigma from the faithful and loyal members of our great Corps.

"There have been three major questions incident to Air Force action as the result of these hearings on Meyers; namely, (1) Should Meyers have been caught before? (2) Should he have been court-martialed within recent weeks? (3) Should the anonymous letter of 1945 have been acted upon by the Air Force?

"We will take these points up in order.

"(1) Should Meyers have been caught before? It appears that during the years 1940-1945 Meyers was profiting from a company performing war contracts in which he had substantial ownership, and that he was living on a scale obviously not supported by an Army officer's salary.

"Through the inquiry instituted by General Arnold—the questionnaire of 1943—Meyers was asked concerning his ownership of securities in aircraft companies. This questionnaire was answered in the negative by Meyers (apparently falsely) and no further check on his answer was made.

High Scale of Living

"The foregoing point raises two questions: Were Meyers' superior officers (General Arnold, Stratemeyer, Echols and possibly others) negligent in failing to observe that Meyers' scale of living was such that he must have income other than his Army salary; and inquiring into the source of that income; and should they also have known of Meyers' irregular personal relationships, and taken action with reference to them?

"The answer in both cases is NO, for the following reasons. Some officers of the Services have wealth which they have inherited, or which their wives have brought to them, which enables them to live on a scale which their salaries alone would not support. It is not an American custom to inquire into the personal finances of its officers.

"There is no indication whatever that Meyers' irregularities were known by any of his superiors, or that there was reason why they should have been known.

"In considering whether General Jones or General Stratemeyer were negligent in not checking on the truth of the replies they received to the questionnaire of February 1943 concerning securities owned by General officers, an important factor must be borne in mind. A most valuable tradition of the Armed Services is the sense of honor of its officer corps.

"It is well known that one of the most difficult jobs in the operation of the capitalistic system is the detection of a financial crook, especially if he has a knack for figures, a record of able service, and a thorough training in finance and accounting.

"Conviction of the head of the New York Stock Exchange as a thief did not mean every banker and broker in the country was a crook. Nor did conviction of the highest Federal Judge in the land below the U. S. Supreme Court signify that other Judges and lawyers in the country were crooks.

"In many ways the actions of Ivar Krueger, Swedish match king, which led to the world's most colossal financial fraud, were similar to this case. Krueger was successful for many years in keeping his dishonest actions entirely unknown to the leading American and European financiers of his day whom he swindled. He was entertained and honored by the world's leading bankers, decorated by various Governments.

"The characteristics of the men were also similar. They were geniuses with figures, had tremendous initiative, energy and drive; and what is perhaps most significant, worked alone.

"With respect to this latter point, thorough investigation of the Meyers' matter does not lay even the finger of suspicion on any other officer in the Air Force or the Army. The fact that Meyers was also a lone wolf probably accounts for his being able to keep his secrets so long.

"(2) Should Meyers have been court-martialed within recent weeks?

Court Martial

"The answer as to why court martial proceedings have not yet actually been instituted against Meyers is clear. We knew months ago the Senate Committee was investigating him and that their findings would ultimately be available to the Air Force.

"Until October 11 last we had no fact to justify a court martial. On that day, Meyers asked us for an interview, which he was given. At that time he told us a shocking story, then suggested we court martial him immediately 'to keep my name from being smeared across the nation by Senator Ferguson.'

"We said we doubted if he should be court-martialed at that time because we did not want to interfere with the working of the Senate Committee. Meyers then stated he had not received any cooperation whatever from the Air Force in his troubles, and added he was afraid his testimony would have to bring in a 'lot of important people.' The implied threat was obvious.

"That same afternoon, at his request, his counsel saw the Air Force's General Counsel, and also suggested the possibility of a court martial; but by that time we were convinced Meyers wanted a court martial as a way of forestalling public hearing by the Senate Committee.

"The next day, Sunday, October 12, General Spaatz who along with our General Counsel, Mr. Shaw and Director of Public Relations, Mr. Leo, had been present at the Meyers' interview suggested, and I of course agreed, that everything Meyers had told us the day previously should be presented immediately to the Secretary of the Army (who still has court martial jurisdiction over Meyers), to the Attorney General, and to Senator Ferguson.

"This was done the first thing the next morning. Senator Ferguson remarked, 'He has told you only a small part of it.'

"When talking it over with the Attorney General, we asked him if he would turn the matter over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation immediately, because Air Force facilities were just not adequate to handle an investigation of the scope and character indicated as required by Meyers' strange voluntary 'confession.'

Attorney General "Watching"

"The Attorney General said he had been watching the proceedings, suggested a conference between the Department of the Army, the Department of the Air Force, Senator Ferguson and Assistant Attorney General Quinn. This was held the following day, Tuesday, at which time the Department of Justice requested that all records of the Senate Committee be turned over to Justice, and requested we make a deposition in the office of the Assistant Attorney General of all Meyers had said to us. This latter was also done promptly. Later that same week we had another conference with the Attorney General, at which time he assured us he was proceeding as rapidly as possible.

"In the meantime, despite some question of legality, the Air Force has with the cooperation of the Secretary of the Army effected stoppage of Meyers' pay. The Air Force has also taken steps to rescind all decorations and awards previously given Meyers.

"Court martial charges are being prepared against Meyers. The time and the charges are being coordinated with the plans of the Department of Justice. It was felt inadvisable to initiate any court martial proceedings until the Committee had fully developed its facts relating to Meyers.

"(3) The Anonymous Letter of 1945. This letter was addressed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. The original was retained by the FBI, with copies transmitted simultaneously to the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice and the Intelligence Division (G-2) of the War Department.

"A copy of the letter was sent to the Air Force by the War Department. No action by the office of the Air Inspector appears, and no one remembers the letter in the office of General Arnold, who was at the Potsdam Conference with the President at the time. General Eaker, in charge of the office in General Arnold's absence, does not remember it. The copy sent the Air Force by the War Department was filed.

ARTHUR MIDDLETON HILL
Chairman,
National Security Resources Board

ATRIM, gray-haired, forceful man of 55 with an impressive record in business, industry and government, Arthur M. Hill has assumed one of the gravest responsibilities in Washington: planning total national mobilization against the danger of future war.

As Chairman of the National Security Resources Board, he heads the Agency created by the National Security Act of 1947 to advise the President on coordination of military, industrial and civilian mobilization. This sweeping responsibility includes the planning of policies—and the planning of executive and administrative agencies to effectuate the policies—on manpower utilization, wartime use of natural and industrial resources, wartime unification of federal procurement agencies, balancing of requirements and supplies in all fields, stockpiling of strategic and critical materials, and strategic relocation of essential industries, services, and business and government activities.

All this responsibility is placed by the statute, and by an executive order of 13 November, with the Board; but by resolution of the Board's members—the Secretaries of the Treasury, Defense, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor—Mr. Hill, as Chairman, has authority to exercise the Board's functions so that the agency can begin to assemble its permanent staff, and to operate.

Without such authority, he probably would regard his job as impossible, for Mr. Hill is an operator. He does not share the belief of many in responsible government positions that it is practically possible to separate planning from execution and administration.

"It seems to me," he says, "that the logical thing is for the Resources Board to be so organized that it could be an integral part of the wartime setup, similar to the Office of War Mobilization.

"The various war agencies, whether emergency or permanent, would follow along on a level below it. That would be, roughly, the conception; although we are just getting started, and certainly haven't any firm plan yet.

"Otherwise, it seems to me, you would get into a realm of abstract thinking."

Mr. Hill's idea, then, is that it is his job to create, as quickly as he can, both a plan for total mobilization, and the organization which could put that plan into operation immediately, and without lost motion, upon the outbreak of war.

He is approaching the job without any preconceived blueprints, but with several firm convictions. The first, and the one which impels him to neglect important personal business in order to remain in public service, is that complete preparation is the surest guarantee against war. Another is that, for all the glib references to it, the United States has never yet approached total mobilization, but in any future war probably will not survive without it. Still another is completely at variance with the popular and wishful-thinking opinion that the next conflict will be a "push-button" war, with less instead of more strain on the civilian community and economy.

"The accelerated development of weapons," he has said, "means for the future that, while there may be relatively less personnel in actual contact with the enemy, the Armed Forces will need in their service branches relatively larger numbers of men with more varied equipment in greater quantities to supply, maintain and transport the actual fighting forces. In any future war, the logistical problem of the Armed Forces will be larger and more complex than during World War II."

Mr. Hill is not without considerable first-hand knowledge of the complexities of the logistical problem in the last war. From 1942 to 1945, he was a Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy, in charge of the Transportation Branch, Chairman of the Secretary's Committee on Public Works Projects, and Navy Rubber Director. Earlier, he was consultant to Mr. Ralph Budd in the National Defense Advisory Council, and then consultant to Mr. Joseph E. Eastman, Director of the Office of Defense Transportation.

His qualifications for these varied duties, and for the heavier ones he has now assumed, are found in Mr. Hill's record as a business man. He is on leave, in order to direct the Resources Board, from his many private executive positions: Chairman of the Executive Committee and Director of the Greyhound Corporation; Chairman of the Board, Atlantic Greyhound Corporation; President and Chairman of the Charleston Transit Company (W. Va.); Chairman of the Board, Capitol Greyhound Lines; President, Kanawha City Company and Kanawha Land Company; Director of the Kanawha Banking and Trust Company, Greenbrier Valley Bank, and the Diamond Ice and Coal Company.

He was born 23 March 1892 in Charleston, W. Va., but lived during his youth in the West, including two years in an Arizona mining camp. He was educated at the Central Missouri State Teachers College. During World War I, Mr. Hill was in the Army. He was graduated from the Staff College at Langres, France, and was Assistant Chief of Staff, 77th Division.

Mr. Hill's most immediate problem is the assembly of the relatively small permanent staff of the Resources Board, and he is encountering the same hurdles met by other government agencies—the reluctance of able men to leave private business for public service. Real progress is being made, however, despite the very recent activation of the Board (Mr. Hill took office 28 Sept., and the other members of the Board were designated by the President on 13 Nov.), the more so because most of the personnel will probably be permanent civil servants.

In the broader aspects of the Board's real work, Mr. Hill says the blue-print stage is a long way off.

"We really don't have a first priority, but most of our attention is going to have to be given, I suppose, to the balancing of potential supply against potential demand," he says.

"I'm concerned with reaching decisions on what should be done now—the 'readiness' aspect of mobilization. Plans and blueprints are things that will take us a longer time to figure out, including what key personnel is to be selected to fill the jobs we set up."

Personally, and as the head of an independent agency created by it, Mr. Hill believes the broad concept of an integrated security program as created by the 1947 law, plus universal military training, offers the surest way to avoid war.

"The National Security Act of 1947, if implemented and carried out, is our best assurance of peace," he says.

"The best way to keep out of war is to be prepared for it. And until such time as we have unquestioned international peace, we have to keep ourselves in a position of strength and readiness."

Reorganize 82d Airborne

Reorganization of the 82d Airborne Division at authorized strength will provide a practical basis for the testing of the new tables of organization and equipment approved by the Department of the Army for Airborne and Infantry divisional units.

This will be the first time since the end of World War II that a division has been manned to its authorized strength.

Maj. Gen. J. M. Gavin commands the division, with headquarters at Ft. Bragg, N. C. One Infantry regimental combat team, including an Infantry regiment, Field Artillery battalion and an Engineer company, plus a tank battalion less one company will be stationed at Ft. Benning, Ga. The 1st Battalion, 25th Infantry, will be attached to this regiment in place of the organic battalion which will be carried at zero strength. All other units of the division will be at Ft. Bragg. The units stationed at Ft. Benning will assist in certain demonstrations for the Infantry School in addition to their primary mission of conducting their own training.

About 17 per cent of the approximately 16,000-man strength of the reorganized airborne division will be Negro troops from a quota of some 8,000 spaces recently allotted to AGF units. They will form five combat units, including one airborne infantry battalion, one field artillery (155-mm. howitzer) battalion, one anti-aircraft artillery battalion, and one tank battalion at Ft. Bragg and the 1st Battalion, 25th Infantry at Ft. Benning. One service unit, the quartermaster field service company, will be at Ft. Bragg.

The increase in the Negro personnel organized in separate units to serve with White units as organic parts of the 82d Airborne Division follows the recommendations of the Gillem Board approved by the War Department.

UNITED STATES ARMY

The 82d was activated as an infantry division 25 March 1942 and was redesignated as an airborne division 15 Aug. 1942. Its first training was received at Camp Claiborne, La., under the command of General Omar Bradley, and later the division moved to Ft. Bragg, N. C., to complete its training before leaving in April, 1943, for Casablanca.

Maj. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway succeeded General Bradley as Commanding General of the division and held the command until August, 1944, when General Gavin became commander, a position he still holds.

Army Selection Boards

The Army's first selection board, which convened in Washington 9 Oct. to consider officers for promotion to the grades of major general and brigadier general, has now completed its work.

The formal report of the board is being processed in the Department of the Army and will go first to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower, Chief of Staff, and then to Secretary of the Army Royall.

No announcement will be made of the actual selections which will total about 200 until the list has been given Presidential approval.

Meanwhile, the board to select officers for promotion to colonel is preparing to convene early next month. In line with

Department of the Army planning the activities of the two boards will not overlap, a policy which it is intended to carry out with subsequent selection boards.

7th Armored Division

Efforts of the 7th Armored Division Association to secure a reversal of the Third Army's adverse report on French recommendations for the award of the French Croix de Guerre with Palm has resulted in a letter from The Adjutant General of the Army informing them that "Any further favorable action by the Department of the Army in this case would be in the nature of a solicitation and it is an established policy that foreign awards to units or individuals will not be recommended or sought by the Department of the Army."

Following receipt of this notification from The Adjutant General, Mr. John P. Oliver, executive secretary of the 7th Armored Division Association, has written again to Secretary of Defense Forrestal informing him that "this reply is entirely unsatisfactory" and adding that the "cavalier manner in which our request for corrective action was denied suggests an underlying reason for the present failure of the Army recruiting program."

First Snowdrop Jump

The first training jump at "Exercise Snowdrop," the AGF winter operation being conducted at Pine Camp, N. Y., was led by Chaplain Joseph Kinney, and the Combat Team Surgeon, Capt. Bernard Krasner.

Participating in the jump were more than 40 paratroopers of the 505th Airborne Battalion Combat Team. Each man carried equipment, including rations for 72 hours, weapons, ammunition, changes of clothing, bedding, and toilet articles, making his average weight over 300 pounds.

Boards Study Recruiting

Two Army Ground Forces boards recently began an inquiry into causes for the low recruiting rate for the ground arms and at the end of a month-long study will make recommendations as to measures to be taken to secure the required number and quality of enlistments.

After the initial sessions at AGF Headquarters at Ft. Monroe, Va., members of both the Senior and Junior Boards left for Washington, D. C., first stop on a tour which will include most of the Army headquarters of principal military installations in the United States.

Maj. Gen. William B. Kean is President of the Senior Board, other members being Brig. Gen. Wayne C. Smith, Brig. Gen. Ira P. Swift, and Lt. Col. Tom V. Stayton, Recorder.

The Junior Board is headed by Capt. John T. O'Halloran, President; other members being 1st Lt. Duane W. Bagley, 1st Lt. Orval Belcher, CWO Leonard E. Reedy, Recorder; M. Sgt. Henry Dickson, Jr., 1st Sgt. Ted G. King, Tech. Sgt. Ross G. Johns and T/3 William E. Kuhns.

Army Renames Port

The Army Air Base, New Orleans Port of Embarkation, a Transportation Corps installation sometimes referred to as the Personnel Center, NOPE, has been redesignated Camp Leroy Johnson, in honor of a Congressional Medal of Honor winner of Okkdale, Louisiana, who lost his life in action against the enemy in Leyte, Philippine Islands, Secretary of the Army Royall announced 24 Nov.

Army Nominations

Having decided not to hold up the recess appointments until January, President Truman on 24 Nov. sent to the Senate nominations covering all the appointments and promotions made since the adjournment of the Senate in July.

Included therein was the nomination of William H. Draper, Jr., to be Under Secretary of the Army, and Gordon Gray to be Assistant Secretary.

Also included were the appointments in the Regular Army, including the Nurse Corps, which were announced while Congress was not in session.

Nominations also were sent up for promotions in the Regular Army under the provisions of the old promotion law, which will be in effect until 31 Dec. 1947. In addition to the nominations for such promotions as were made during the recess, nominations for the following new promotions also were made:

tenance are important considerations. Radioteletype, radiotelephone, television, facsimile and telemetered data transmissions are a part of the requirements that have to be met. The system must be so designed as to provide satisfactory communications of these types over an integrated civil-military and radio-wire system for extended distances. The equipment miniaturization, winterization, systems engineering and research and development program and other activities of the Signal Corps, are designed to meet these requirements.

Of equal importance with properly designed equipment and facilities are: The personnel for its installation, operation and maintenance, and

The plans and activities necessary for its procurement, production and distribution.

Immediate and effective signal communications are a primary essential in meeting the requirements of a national emergency. This will require the immediate availability of the personnel necessary to use and supplement the existing facilities in such a manner as to meet the needs of the situation. The closely integrated employment, under emergency plans, of the communication elements and facilities of the National Guard, Organized Reserves, and Regular Army, in conjunction with those of the commercial communication operating companies, will be essential. The instantaneous availability of these signal communication elements will be important.

To more nearly meet this requirement for instant readiness, the operating and manufacturing companies of the commercial communication industry are co-operating fully in the Signal Corps Affiliated Unit Program. Under this plan, these companies provide units that perform functions in civil life which are as closely allied as possible to those of the projected units' military assignments. The personnel is normally drawn from those employees, of the sponsoring organization, which have the signal communication, and other skills, necessary for signal communication and related purposes.

In order that effective emergency action may be obtained between the various signal communication elements of the Armed Forces and civil organizations, measures are being initiated to insure the closest liaison and cooperative action.

The procurement, production, and distribution of equipment and supplies of the required type in the quantities needed at the proper time will be obtained by the integration and cooperation of the elements of the Scientist-Industry-Armed Forces team. Mobilization requirements are being determined, critical raw materials needs computed, factories surveyed and allocated, production engineering studies continued, educational orders placed and procurement planning carried on to the end that quantity production will be attained quickly when required.

While the signal communication mission of the Signal Corps has been given the greater consideration in this discussion of the Signal Corps future, there are other missions and activities which are of equal importance in their respective fields. Brevity and other considerations limit the space that can be given these items. Of special importance are the Signal Corps' research and development and photographic service activities.

In research and development the Signal Corps program in the electronics, meteorological, sound, light, guided missile and photographic fields includes extensive activities based on the requirements of a possible emergency. The Signal Corps engineering laboratories through close collaboration, and contracts, with the research and development laboratories and personnel of industry and recognized educational institutions carry out the research and development program. By this means, the scientist member is integrated into the Scientist-Industry-Armed Forces team and the best effort of civilian and military scientific talent obtained.

In all of the activities of the Signal Corps there is a wide exchange of scientific information with the other armed services, in order that useless duplication of effort may be avoided and all may benefit through the exchange of scientific knowledge. To this end, the Army Signal Corps has joined with Navy Research, the Air Force, and other technical services of the Army to sponsor many larger research projects. Its research and development, equipment, and photographic programs are all coordinated with the other components of the Armed Forces.

The Signal Corps photographic service's production of information, education and training films renders this activity of especial importance. These films are of the greatest value for the peacetime and mobilization education and training of the Armed Forces, particularly the civilian components. It is contemplated that they will be used extensively in the Universal Military Training program, if and when one is adopted. It is certain that the future training of the Army will require more extensive activities in this field.

In brief, the Army Signal Corps program for the future is that of continually foreseeing and meeting new requirements and exploiting all scientific discoveries and developments to this end. It contemplates the maximum cooperative action with the other components of the Armed Forces, industry, and other civilian activities.

"Spot" Rear Admiral Pay Decision

To determine the pay status, under two varying conditions, of Rear Adm. George W. Carver, MC, USN, attending physician at the United States Capitol, the Department of the Navy has requested the Comptroller General's decision on two questions:

"(1) Whether or not Rear Admiral George W. Carver, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy, while serving under a so-called 'spot' appointment for temporary service as a rear admiral, as stated above, is entitled, while on the active list of the Navy, to continue to receive, from and after 7 August 1947, the pay and allowances of the upper half of the grade of rear admiral, notwithstanding the repeal of section 2 of the Act of 30 June 1942, supra, by section 426(a) of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947?"

"(2) Whether or not, in the event of the voluntary retirement of Rear Admiral George W. Carver, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy, under the provisions of Public Law 305, as amended, and his subsequent recall to active duty for the continued performance of duty under his present active duty assignment, he would be entitled to receive the active duty pay and allowances of a rear admiral of the upper half?"

An official digest of the Comptroller's decision (B-69059) follows:

"A staff officer (permanent captain) holding a temporary 'spot' appointment as rear admiral with the pay and allowances of the upper half pursuant to section 2 of the act of 30 June 1942, may not, in view of section 311(d) (14) of the Officer Personnel Act of 1947, providing, in effect, that staff rear admirals are entitled to the pay and allowances of the upper half only when their line running mates become so entitled, receive such pay and allowances on or after 7 August 1947, the date of enactment of the 1947 act, section 426(a) of which repealed section 2 of the 1942 act, where such officer's line running mate holds the permanent rank of captain."

"A temporary rear admiral of the Navy in receipt of the pay and allowances of the upper half on 30 June 1946, who is to be retired subsequent to such date for length of service pursuant to section 6 of the act of 21 February 1946, will be entitled under section 10(b) (2) of the act of 24 July 1941, as amended, to retired pay based upon the active-duty pay of a rear admiral (upper half); and, upon recall to active duty after retirement, such officer would be entitled in accordance with section 10(d) of the 1941 act, as amended, to the active-duty pay and allowances authorized for a rear admiral (upper half)."

Adm. Denfeld Nominated

President Truman on 26 Nov. officially sent to the Senate the nomination of Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, USN, "to be Chief of Naval Operations in the Department of the Navy, with the rank of Admiral, for a term of two years."

In making the nomination for a period of only two years instead of the four years specified in basic law, the President is following a precedent set in 1945 in the nomination of Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz. While no official explanation ever has been made as to the reasons for Admiral Nimitz's two-year nomination, it was generally agreed that the latter, having served throughout the war in a position of high responsibility, did not personally want to be committed to a further four-year tour as the top peacetime Naval commander.

However, in continuing the two-year term for the new nominee it would appear that the official four-year term has been abandoned. As a matter of practice, very few Chiefs of Operations in the Navy have served out the full four years, most having either returned to a high fleet command at sea or having retired before the expiration of their four years.

New Torpedoes Given Work-Out

Four former German U-Boats, acquired under the terms of the Potsdam Agreement, were destroyed by the Navy last week in service tests of an experimental torpedo.

The former enemy craft were sunk by torpedoes fired from Atlantic Fleet submarines 40 miles northeast of Cape Cod, Mass., on 20 and 21 Nov.

Rear Adm. A. G. Noble, USN, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, stated that the tests were highly successful, contributing valuable information regarding the reliability and effectiveness of new undersea weapon development.

Lt. Comdr. Little Acquitted

Secretary of the Navy, John L. Sullivan, this week approved the acquittal of Lt. Comdr. Edward N. Little, USN, who was tried before a General Court Martial at the Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., last Spring.

Comdr. Little, a Naval Academy graduate, was captured by the Japs on Corregidor in the Spring of 1942. In the summer of 1943, he was transported, along with about 500 other American prisoners of war, to Fukuoka Prison of War Camp No. 17, near Omuta, Kyushu, Japan. He remained there for approximately 25 months, until his liberation, and during that time served as the camp mess officer. During the last few months in the camp, he had additional duty as company commander of American prisoners.

Shortly after hostilities with Japan ceased, complaints reached the Navy Department that Comdr. Little might have been guilty of mistreatment of his fellow prisoners. A Court of Inquiry composed of three former prisoners of war was convened by the Secretary of the Navy, and recommended that Comdr. Little be tried by General Court Martial.

In the trial, which lasted 98 days and in which 75 witnesses were heard, Comdr. Little faced three charges, alleging twenty-two instances of misconduct on his part. Of the seven officers who sat on the court martial, three were graduates of the Naval Academy, one was a medical officer, and three were officers in the Naval Reserve. Two of the members were ex-prisoners of war and one was an ex-enlisted man.

Forty-five defense witnesses made statements concerning the charges on which Lt. Comdr. Little was tried, and expressed opinions based on personal observation of him and his conduct in the prison camp. The trend of these statements was favorable and, although a few witnesses stated that he was harsh on occasion, opinion was nearly unanimous that he was honest.

Sports Front

EVERY so often a bunch of self-appointed adherents and hangers-on start worrying about Army or Navy losing too many football games. This year it's Navy—in the next college generation the tables may well be turned.

The worrying in itself is not so bad; in fact, the two academies feel they belong to all the people. They welcome moral support on the athletic field as they do in all other activities.

However, there are always some who feel they know more about the conduct of academy athletics than those who have been entrusted with the job, always forgetting that the ones in coaching and other positions have been very carefully selected by their superiors.

When the afore-mentioned worrying reaches fever pitch, one inevitable manifestation is a demand that the academies abandon their present system of graduate coaches for football teams. "Hire a big-name coach!" is the cry. "Don't send the boys out to compete against teams trained by professionals when Navy's (or Army's) coach's best qualification is that he's an academy man."

Let's assume, since he's the one under fire at the moment, that there are coaches available who, all other things being equal, could win more games than Captain Tom Hamilton. We don't believe it, but we'll grant the premise for the sake of argument.

Would it, then, be wise to install a well-known mentor, one who had a successful record in the won-and-lost column, simply to bring more scalps back to Annapolis? No, for two reasons.

Primarily, the Naval Academy is interested first, last and all the time in turning out Navy officers inferior to none. Football is a splendid character builder for those who play and a healthful diversion for those who watch, but it is only a small cog in the molding of an officer.

No one can appreciate this so well as an academy graduate. It is only natural that football is the most important thing in the world to a man who has made a career of coaching football, and it would not be surprising if he carried this conviction with him into an academy coaching job. It goes without saying that the potential clash here could be disastrous.

Second, the career coach is used to having complete command over his players, off the field as well as on. Since in the majority of civilian colleges the players are trading their football skill for an education, and since the coach's job in such colleges usually depends on his record, the fact that the coach is the biggest man in the college life of his players comes as a matter of course.

Such a coach would find a different situation at either service academy. Except for the actual practice period, which is far shorter than in most cases, he would find that his players had little time to think of him. He would be unable to keep academic misfits in college merely because they could play football. In short, instead of being the most important man on campus next to the head of the institution, he would find himself directing a purely recreational activity which ranked way down the line in the ultimate importance of things. Not many present-day coaches could take this set-up.

There are more important items than winning football games. We think one of them is having graduate coaches in charge of academy football.

USNA Class of '23

Announcement was made this week that the U. S. Naval Academy Class of 1923 "Bulletin" is not yet ready for issue, but will be ready sometime early in 1948.

Air Force Nominations

President Truman on 24 Nov. sent to the Senate the appointments of officers in the Air Corps (which were included with the Army nominations) made during August, September, and October while the Senate was not in session.

Also sent to the Senate were the nominations of: W. Stuart Symington to be Secretary of the Air Force, Arthur S. Barrows to be Under Secretary of the Air Force, and Cornelius V. Whitney and Eugene M. Zuckert to be Assistant Secretaries of the Air Force, and General Carl Spaatz as Chief of Staff, USAF, with the rank of General for four years beginning 26 Sept. 1947, all of whom have been serving under recess appointments.

In addition the President sent up the nominations of those officers who have been promoted under recess appointments since last July, plus the following new promotions in the Air Force:

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

Aviation Cadet Training

Wartime-qualified Aviation Cadets whose hopes for pilot's wings were ended by the 1944-45 curtailment of the flight training program may be eligible to resume their flying instruction with the United States Air Force.

The USAF estimates that approximately 35,000 men who had qualified for Aviation Cadet pilot training during the war were in training or awaiting assignment to classes when the program was first reduced in 1944, and reduced still more the following year, because of the successful progress of the war.

The tripling of the pilot training program in 1948 from the present 1,000 to 3,000 cadets a year makes it possible for the Air Force to offer flight instruction to many cadets who had qualified but were not commissioned during the war. Men in this special category may be reinstated in Aviation Cadet classes if they can pass the Air Force physical examination and have these additional qualifications: American citizens, between 20 and 26½ years of age, unmarried, and who have had at least two years of college study or can pass a test measuring the equivalent. These applicants will not be required to take the USAF qualifying examinations now given to new candidates for Cadet training.

XP-86 Initial Flights

The United States Air Force's first swept-back jet fighter plane, the X-86, has successfully completed its initial test flights at Muroc Air Base, Calif.

The single-place, low-wing fighter, which employs a swept-back in its wings and tail assembly, has completed approximately 30 flights and has amassed a total of about 30 hours flying time. Pilots, Air Force observers and company engineers declared the initial flights highly satisfactory.

Designed to attain speeds in excess of 600 miles per hour, the XP-86 is the first operational fighter with swept-back wings to fly in this country.

Powered by an axial flow jet engine capable of producing 4,000 pounds of thrust, the XP-86 employs the single straight ram duct, with its opening in the nose.

The XP-86 has a wing span of 37 feet, a length of 37 feet and a height of 14 feet. It has a range of over 1000 miles and a service ceiling of over 40,000 feet.

US Air Force Academy

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), a member of the House Committee on Armed Services, this week introduced a bill to establish the United States Air Academy at Randolph Field, Tex. "Now that we have created an independent Air Force," Mr. Kilday said, "it is necessary and desirable that it have its own institution for the training of officer personnel."

Mr. Kilday announced:

"The Honorable W. Stuart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force, has informed me that his department is giving very careful study to the question of the desirability, necessity, and probable scope of such an institution. The Secretary has added: 'If it appears that the establishment of an Air Force Academy will be required for the training of our personnel, you may be assured that the many facilities currently available at Randolph Field, together with the experience gained from training activities so long conducted in that area, will be thoroughly evaluated before any final decision is made.'

"I hope, in view of the present world condition and the importance of the Air Force to our national security, that my bill may secure prompt, favorable action."

Largest Land Plane

The world's largest land plane, the United States Air Force's XC-99, successfully completed its first test flight at Lindbergh Field, Calif., 23 Nov., remaining aloft for one hour.

The six-engine giant is a cargo version of the B-36 heavy bomber. Normal crew complement for the XC-99 is five men, plus an equal number of relief crew members.

Wing span of the XC-99 is the same as that of the B-36, 230 feet. The XC-99, however, is 20 feet longer and 10 feet higher than the B-36, having a length of 182 feet and a height of 57 feet. The 265-

000-pound transport is capable of carrying 400 fully-equipped combat troops or 100,000 pounds of cargo. Should it be used as a hospital transport, it could transport 335 litter patients with the necessary medical attendants.

The XC-99 is designed for a top speed in excess of 300 miles per hour and a maximum range, with reduced loads, of more than 8,000 miles.

CAP Sixth Anniversary

The Civil Air Patrol, an official auxiliary of the United States Air Force, will celebrate the sixth anniversary of its organization 1 Dec.

In announcing the anniversary celebration, Brig. Gen. Lucas V. Bean, National Commander of the CAP, said, "It is my firm conviction that the Civil Air Patrol will grow and expand so that it will become an important factor in the maintenance of American supremacy in commercial aviation and military air power."

USAF Generals Reassigned

Reassignments for three U. S. Air Force generals were announced 26 Nov.

Brig. Gen. Frederick Von Harten Kimble was named commanding general of the Alaskan Air Command's Aleutian Sector at Adak Island. Now stationed at Langley Field, Va., General Kimble served in the Pacific Ocean area during the war.

Brig. Gen. Walter E. Todd, who had served on the Army's General Staff, was assigned to the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff in Washington as deputy director of the Joint Intelligence Group.

Brig. Gen. Alvin R. Lueddecke, wartime assistant chief of staff for operations, plans, training, and intelligence for the Army Air Forces in India and Burma, was named a member of the Strategic Plans Group of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He has been stationed at Air Force Headquarters.

USAF Pilot Training School

Barksdale Field, La. — Goodfellow Field, San Angelo, Texas, an Air Training Command station on inactive status since the fall of 1946, will be reactivated as a permanent post-war Air Force pilot training school and will accept its first class of pilot trainees on 1 March, Lt. Gen. John K. Cannon, Commanding General of the Air Training Command, announced 20 Nov.

General Cannon said the initial class of pilot trainees will be composed of Aviation Cadets and student officers. An initial cadre of permanent party personnel will be shipped into the station at an early date to prepare for the training mission. Permanent party strength will be built up to a required operational level prior to the opening date. The normal strength of the station, including permanent party and student personnel, will exceed 2,000 persons.

The station will operate under the control of the Flying Division, Air Training Command, commanded by Maj. Gen. James P. Hodges from his headquarters at Randolph Field, Tex.

Navy Dental Selection Board

A three-member Board to select Dental Corps officers for temporary promotion to the rank of Rear Admiral was appointed this week by Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan.

Members of the Board are Rear Adm. Glenn B. Davis, USN, senior member; Rear Adm. Ernest W. Litch, USN; and Rear Adm. Cornelius H. Mack, Dental Corps, USN, Retired. The Board will convene on 1 Dec. to select a total of three Rear Admirals.

which charges against General officers and others should be investigated by the limited facilities of the Air Inspector's office. The letter itself gave indication of unreliability. It was anonymous. It purported to come from a man of the 'Air Corp' who constantly mis-spelled the word Corps.

Many Anonymous Letters

"This anonymous letter was one of hundreds that are received from various enemies, in and out of the service, which any officer or enlisted man is likely to acquire. These enemies may be disgruntled employees and their friends and supporters, officers or enlisted men who have not received the promotions they think they deserve, and many others. Investigating authorities should protect individuals against malicious injury of this type, just as they protect the public against unlawful acts.

"When this anonymous letter was received in 1945, the war with Germany had just been completed and the Army Air Force was faced with the tremendous job of redeployment to the Pacific. This was a time when AAF Headquarters had the enormous responsibility of swinging the entire weight of most of its air power half way around the world against Japan. Under these circumstances this anonymous letter, against a trusted high ranking member of the Air Corps, was not followed up.

"Hindsight is better than foresight, but it is agreed with General Arnold that the letter should have been investigated.

"So much for the past. To us the future is even more important; and now it is both our duty and our desire to set up in the Air Force a procurement system which reduces to an absolute minimum the chance of any such disgraceful occurrence ever happening again.

Reorganize Procurement

"A general reorganization of the entire procurement structure of the Air Force has been under way during the two months since we first obtained autonomy under the new Security Act. To that end, as Under Secretary, the Air Force now has one of the nation's foremost experts on procurement planning and administration, Arthur S. Barrows, for many years President of Sears, Roebuck & Co. Mr. Barrows is presently engaged in a thorough study of all procurement matters incident to standardizing, streamlining, and allocating of straight line operating authority along with responsibility.

"It is with pleasure that we can also report the fact Mr. Frank J. Wilson, retired head of the U. S. Treasury Secret Service, has agreed to work with the Air Force in an advisory capacity, with a view to establishing an inspection organization which will produce maximum efficiency with the facilities available.

"In closing, as we mentioned in the attached, recent letter to Captain Friedberg, the action of any one man can never sully the glorious past record of the Air Force, or retard its brilliant future.

"Confident of our ability to advance in public esteem through hard work, we dedicate ourselves to maximum effectiveness, the best American business practice, and the highest traditions of the military service."

The text of the letters referred to by Secretary Symington follow:

Washington, D. C.
Dear Sir:

"After having read the account of financial manipulations of Major General Bennett E. Meyers, Retired, my blood is boiling to such an extent I find it difficult to sit down and write a coherent letter.

"Is this the type of man who was our superior officer, while my comrades and myself were serving in combat areas? A great number of my buddies, whom I grew to respect and love have made the supreme sacrifice, many shot down in flames before my own eyes. Did they die so men of Meyers ilk could ply their filthy trade to be able to wallow around in

U. S. COAST GUARD

HEADQUARTERS is currently considering the revision of the stowage plans and removal of surplus equipment on the 327-foot class cutters.

The Interagency Committee on Merchant Marine safety, met on 10 Nov. and prepared a draft of part of the report on ammonium nitrate fertilizer relative to the hazards in land transportation and in storage under various conditions.

Completing over 43 years of active service in the Coast Guard, Rear Adm. Stanley V. Parker, USCG, Commander Western Area of that service, reached the compulsory age of retirement in October and was retired from active duty 1 Nov.

Born in Cincinnati, Ohio, 26 Oct. 1885, he graduated from the Technical School of Cincinnati in 1904 and the Coast Guard Academy in 1906. He has served in all the grades to and including his present one, on duty ashore and afloat on the coasts of the United States and in the waters of Alaska, Hawaii and Europe.

For service in World War I, Rear Admiral Parker was awarded the Victory Medal with aviation clasp, and for exceptionally meritorious conduct as Captain of the Port of New York in World War II, the Legion of Merit Medal.

Rear Admiral Parker has written several manuals including a "Manual for Coast Guard Officers Acting as United States Commissioners in Alaska," which is in general use by the resident commissioners in that Territory.

President Truman on 24 Nov. sent the following Coast Guard nominations to the Senate:

Halbert C. Shephard to be a commodore in USCG Reserve for temporary service, effective 13 Aug. 1947.

The following to be lieutenant commanders USCG, rank from 30 Sept. 1947:

Gustave A. Lohse

money gained through the blood poured by my fellow fliers?

"How long is the covering up of one brass hat by another going to continue to make a travesty of our Air Force and disgrace the hundreds of thousands who served it so well during the last war?

"If a sweeping investigation is not held in the near future, and if the dealers in blood money are not brought to justice in the near future, I will no longer consider it an honor and a privilege to serve in what I thought was the finest fighting body of men in the world, and will forthwith tender my resignation.

"Would you be kind enough to tell me what action, if any, is contemplated?

"Very truly yours,
"Elmer S. Friedberg, Captain,
"Air Corps Reserve, 0-436812."

"19 November 1947

"Capt. Elmer S. Friedberg
345 King Street
Pottstown, Pennsylvania
Dear Captain Friedberg:

"When your letter of November 14 arrived, I was sitting with two officers whose names are synonymous with all the courage and loyalty known to be characteristic of the Air Force. They both said, 'We could not have written our own reaction more accurately.'

"Recently an Air Force general told me he was in a store the other day when two elderly women, noting his rank and insignia, started talking in loud voices about generals who stole while enlisted men were dying. He said he would never get over it.

"Another officer of the Materiel Command from Wright Field asked yesterday, 'Isn't Senator Ferguson going to say anything so the people will know that the rest of us are not dishonest?' and to that end I am seeing the Senator today.

"I cite you these reactions and illustrations to show how shocked and saddened all of us are to find out what one man has done.

"Except for what would appear to be an error in judgment last May in not passing to the Committee an anonymous letter, the Air Force as a whole is not involved.

"The anonymous letter referred to in the press, which makes several charges against General Meyers, was but one of hundreds of letters regarding various members of the AAF. Investigations were made with respect to the letter in question. The specific charges were not supported by the facts. It now develops, however, that there is very strong evidence of the broad violations alleged against General Meyers.

"The Air Force men as a whole are the same fine clean group of men with whom you fought to preserve our way of life, and of whom I am sure in your heart you are very proud.

"I can report to you as your Secretary that since the first day we knew of any facts in this matter we have been working with all agencies of the government to be sure to see that justice shall be done.

"As soon as it came to our attention, I personally discussed the matter immediately with the Secretary of the Army, Secretary of Defense, Treasury Department, the Attorney General and Senator Ferguson himself.

"As you know, the average air officer is not an experienced business man. It is not his training. This is the reason a man with a business background can go very far wrong without his supervisors knowing it, especially when their eyes are facing west and east to the winning of the war.

"Based on my own business experience, however, I can tell you that once an able and experienced man turns dishonest, especially if he is intelligent and well trained, it is almost impossible to catch him until a relatively long period of time has elapsed. This hap-to be sullied by the dishonest action of any individual, regardless of his rank. I know you agree about that.

"With appreciation for your letter and with my personal pledge to you that General Spatts and I intend to see justice done in this or any other case of a similar character, I am

"Sincerely yours,
"W. Stuart Symington."

P-80 Gunnery Tests

P-80 Shooting Stars of the United States Air Force's 56th Fighter Group, stationed at Selfridge Field, Mich., achieved the remarkable score of 55 per cent hits out of 11,000 rounds fired in air-ground gunnery tests, and 37 per cent hits out of 45,000 rounds in air-to-air firing. Air Force officials believe the accomplishments of the 56th Fighter Group demonstrated the superiority in aerial gunnery of jet-propelled fighter planes over the conventional type used in World War II.

Lt. Col. David C. Schilling, commander of the 56th Fighter Group and a top ranking fighter pilot in the Eighth Air Force during the war, said, "We have been practicing both ground strafing and aerial gunnery for the past five months with our P-80's with highly gratifying results."

Pacific Div. ATC

The Pacific Division of the Air Transport Command will become an all-military operation 1 Dec. when the contract of the Flying Tiger Line, Inc., expires on 30 Nov., it was announced at Division headquarters, Hickam Field, T. H.

The last Tiger-operated C-54 left the mainland westbound on 24 Nov. and it is anticipated that all flight crews and foreign based maintenance and other personnel will be returned to the mainland by midnight of 30 Nov. Withdrawal of Tiger personnel along the Trans-Pac route started 25 Nov.

"The Army and Navy Journal is established in the interests of no party; it will be controlled by no clique. Its independence will be absolute. Avoiding all personal and political bias, its influence will be directed solely to the inculcation of sound military ideas, and to the elevation of the public service in all its departments."—From Vol. 1, No. 1, of the Army and Navy Journal, published August 29, 1863.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1947

"Our National Defense Team is not unlike a rocket. The Army, the Navy and the Air Force comprise the explosive force in the warhead. This is the part of the rocket that destroys an aggressor. However, the great bulk of a rocket is comprised of the propelling charge, the explosive force which launches and drives the projectile. The industrial potential of this country is the propelling charge. Without it, the warhead goes nowhere."—LT. GEN. GEORGE E. STRATEMEYER, USAF.

DON'T NEGLECT TO SEND US NOW YOUR SUGGESTIONS FOR OUR PRIORITY LIST

JUST as two years ago the surrender of our enemies brought about a complete change-over in the leadership of the Armed Forces, so today, as demobilization is completed and a new National Military Establishment created, another shift in leadership is taking place so that the new high command will carry on with the reshaping of the permanent Forces that will guard the peace and carry out our international obligations in the years to come. Within a period of a few months of each other, General Omar N. Bradley will replace General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower as Chief of Staff of the Army, Admiral Louis E. Denfeld will take over from Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz the post of Chief of Operations of the Navy, while Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates will become Commandant of the Marine Corps relieving General Alexander A. Vandegrift. General Carl Spaatz stated some months ago that he would like to retire within a year and let someone else carry on as Chief of Staff of the newly created separate Air Force, but this shift may now be somewhat delayed by his desire to press through the unsavory case of Bennett E. Meyers. Each of the newly appointed Service commanders is younger than his predecessor and each has an outstanding record of combat leadership in World War II. Each, too, has demonstrated capacity in administrative positions, General Bradley particularly in his brilliant tour in the arduous post of Administrator of Veterans Affairs, but also Admiral Denfeld as Chief of Naval Personnel and General Cates as Commandant of the Marine Corps Schools. The new Chiefs will have the task of fitting their respective Services into the new unified establishment, the present administration has created and of preparing them for the changes that will be wrought in this age of atomic warfare and guided missiles. To this end they will need and get the support of the Services, but their way will be blocked unless the Congress gives them the necessary appropriations and legislation which must be forthcoming to insure our National Security.

THE shame and humiliation arising from the revelations in the case of Bennett E. Meyers is no where felt more keenly than within the military Services. Nor is there anywhere a stronger determination that punishment shall be swift and severe—as is presaged by the initial action of the Army and Air Force, "despite some question of legality," in stripping this disgracer of his uniform of his decorations and retired pay. The revulsion which the Services and the country felt upon reading the testimony arose not from enormity of personal gain, not from inefficiency (the fuse boxes which the Meyers' firm produced apparently were satisfactory), not from delays or harmful results on the production and delivery of fighting material to the front, but from the thought that an officer of an American military service should defoul the Service with evidence of his personal greed and the violation of its tradition of honor. The very unusualness of the discovery of personal peculations on the part of an officer of the Regular Establishments is the correct basis for the righteous ire the case has stirred up. General of the Army Arnold, whose appearance before the Committee created a profound impression upon the Senators, pointed out that Air Force headquarters "relied on General Meyers' word that he no longer held directly or indirectly investments upon which he might profit from his procurement authority." General Arnold then laid down in his own words what every officer knows as basic in the military code—"The Military Service rests on the word of its officers. An Army or Air Force cannot exist unless its officers can rely on such statements. The penalty for a false official statement is severe—the most basic ground for general court martial." The Hon. Josephus Daniels, former Secretary of the Navy, also put it very clearly in a letter to the Editor of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, when, speaking of Service officers, he said, "While we know they are not free from human failings they are freer than most men in other professions from greed and graft, and they are probably the most truthful and frank of any of the professions." Having found what General Arnold referred to as "a rotten apple in our barrel," the Services will not rest until all guilt has been punished and until its own system of procurement and inspections has been so strengthened and guarded that repetitions will be impossible. But the country should never forget that 3,000,000 Air Force officers and enlisted men with $60,000,000,000 worth of equipment procured, produced, and distributed in record-breaking time, suffered untold hardships, wounds and deaths, against savage and determined enemies that our country might be spared the ravages of war and the tread of the conqueror's heel. Certainly they will not, any more than the public, permit that valiant record to be besmirched without heavy penalty and the further tightening of the system of checks.

Service Humor

Ye Olde Colonel

He clutched the Army-Navy bar
Longside his whiskey sour,
I thought I heard him mumbling
The same thing, hour on hour.

I got a trifle cur'ous,
And a little closer came;
He was spilling football lingo
About a coming game.

I guessed his perturbation,
So I hastened to explain,
"My heart is with the Army,
But—my cash's on Notre Dame."

He clicked his heels together,
Spruced his military frame,
Then fiery eye and husky voice
Emphatic'ly proclaim,

"I don't care though the Army
Loses ev'ry other game,
If those Kaydets will shoot the works
And wallop Notre Dame!"

I don't know if the Colonel
Will ever be the same,
If he's required to celebrate
A win from Notre Dame.

And yet contingencies of loss
Quite stagger my belief—
The drinks the Colonel must imbibe
To fully drown his grief!

The Colonel offers me a drink;
We pray in Heaven's name,
The Army lads will shoot the works
And wallop Notre Dame!

Somehow or other the Elks had gotten hold of a couple of hundred pairs of nylons and so a victory luncheon was held in order to hand out the prize catch to the fellow members. Following the luncheon the Super-Elk rose and doled out a pair a person.

As the last pair was given out, he made the announcement: "I want to inform you fellows that cards were also sent to your wives telling of this event."

With that, a voice called from back of the room: "Say, if that's true, I want to change my size from nine and a half to ten!"

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

Foreign Affairs—In the debate and discussions in Congress on Western European and Chinese relief, there is implicit the determination to maintain American strength. In other words we will give and give generously with one hand, but we will keep our right ready and poised for any eventuality that may arise. Senator Vandenberg, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, terming the proposed aid an "unescapable necessity" and in our "unavoidable self-interest," impressed the importance of this program upon the Senate, and in doing so emphasized the inference easily to be drawn from the statement of our power contained in the opening Message of the President to Congress. While the legislators, who investigated conditions in Europe this Summer, see "no immediate danger of war," they realize there are many points of contact and a clash at any one of them could precipitate hostilities. They know further from the information they obtained, the latest from E. L. Raymond, former industrial analyst of the American Embassy at Moscow, that Russian industry is entirely geared for war. That industry, the second largest in the world, is turning out armaments in large quantities plus the many items—from coal to conveyors—required for the process of armament manufacture. Mr. Raymond further stated that there is especial industrial expansion in the interior with dependence upon oil deposits in the Urals and Asia rather than the Caucasus, that they are equipping each industrial plant with a "military section," and are planning to have the atom bomb in production by 1950. The reasons for their war unreadiness at this time is that they are behind schedule on their five year industrial plan, their transportation system also is far behind, they lack the know-how to run out large bombers and transports although they built good fighter planes during the war, and on the atom bomb they lack experts to produce precision instruments and still must build huge hydro-electric plants. But Mr. Raymond gives Russia two decades of success in her plans after which he believes the Soviet industry will approach ours in size and excel ours in readiness for war. Reports from other sources which appear to have some basis of truth, state that aided by German experts and scientists the Russian air power is greater and more efficient than Mr. Raymond estimates, that tank production, with a new formidable machine, has largely increased, that motorized units also have been increased, and that in the field of rockets and guided missiles they have made considerable progress experimentally though not yet from a production standpoint.

There are many points at which our forces and those of the Soviet bloc are in contact—danger points where clashes already have occurred and where greater clashes may be precipitated. At Trieste we have had numerous brushes with the Yugo-Slavs and a number of our men have been killed or wounded; just this week U. S. Army headquarters reported that six American soldiers had been seized by the Yugo-Slav troops on the northern border. We have had Russian arrests of American officers and men in Berlin and Vienna, and we have in turn arrested Russians. In Greece we are increasing the number of officers and men by several hundred, some of them general officers, including Brig. Gen. A. McK. Harper and Brig. Gen. Truman C. Thorsen. Under this new program we will advise the Greek officers down to the Division level and we will have observers with their forces in the active areas. We are enlarging the quantity of munitions that country is to receive from us. We have announced that our policy is to train the Greek troops, to advise them on military conduct of operations, but not to exercise command. Similar advice is being given to the Turks, who also are receiving large shipments of munitions. The same policy is being pursued in China where we are supporting and will continue to support the Chiang Kai-shek Government whereas the Russians are promoting the activities and operations of the Chinese communists. Our troops face the Soviet's across the frontiers of the zones into which Korea is divided. In Iran we are diplomatically supporting the Teheran Government in its refusal to grant oil concessions to the Soviet Union while the latter is sending sharp notes to the Iranian Premier accusing his government of hostile action in cancelling the oil concessions to her. We are denouncing the acts of the Satellite States which we hold to be in violation of the Yalta agreements. The regret President Truman expressed, in his message to Congress, over the differences which have arisen and "the criticisms so loudly expressed" and General Marshall's strong statement that the time had come for a halt in Russia's anti-American propaganda has had no effect upon Moscow now the new Comintern, who continue to attack us. The tenseness of the situation is sure to grow when the United Nations Commissions start their watch on the Greek, Bulgarian, and Yugo-Slav frontiers, and to supervise the elections for a provisional government in Korea. Those commissions were created at our instance. Russia and her satellites have officially declared they intend to boycott them. We would lose prestige unless we acted to insure the performance by the Commissions of the duties entrusted to them. As to Greece that would mean an investigation of what the Yugo-Slavs and Bulgarians are doing, and as to Korea the presence of commission observers at the election points in the Russian Zone. In only one region are we and the Soviets in agreement, and that is on Palestine. The two governments favor its partition into Jewish and Arab states under the direction of a UN Commission, which also would administer the states until Governments were set up. The British, still determined to terminate their occupation by 1 Aug., will have nothing to do with the plan on the ground that it would antagonize the Arab World. Meanwhile, in Palestine the Arabs are forming "National Committees" to direct local Arab defenses in what they view as the "inevitable" struggle for the Jewish-Christian-Muslim Holy Land. These National Committees are similar to those which figured so largely in the Arab revolt of 1936-39 in connection with the Mufti and his Higher Committee.

The Four-Power Council of Foreign Ministers assembled in London 25 Nov. in the expected air of hostility. Carrying on the type of propaganda which Senator Vandenberg had earlier characterized as "fantastic libel," Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov attacked the aims of the United States, France, and Britain and charged that they are seeking to impose "an imperialistic peace" holding the "seeds of conflict and even war." He was sharply rebuked by General Marshall who demanded that the Conference "get down to work and drop this business of alleging evil motives which are figments of propaganda and not of the mind" adding that "whatever he may say, I would remain convinced that the Soviet delegate does not really believe his allegations." Neither did the British and French members let the Russian blast pass without retort, Mr. Bevin taking a lighter vein (the "humor they deserve," he said), remarking that he was used to such charges and that "I suppose we are all warmongers now—the only good saint in the world is the Soviet Union," while Mr. Bidault retorted that the Russian tactics "do not improve the chances of getting settlement." Nevertheless, the conference did agree on an agenda, but with the provision that the ministers would be free to go from one item to another without waiting for decisions on any of them. In accordance with the American desires the report of the Austrian Treaty Commission was placed first, but it was agreed to refer that problem to the deputies who are to report back 2 Dec. All other items on the agenda are concerned with Germany including the preparation of a peace treaty and discussion of frontiers (although Molotov holds to the Soviet contention that the eastern frontier with Poland was finally fixed at Potsdam and Yalta, a view with which General Marshall and Mr. Bevin refuse to concur), economic principles and level of economy and reparations, political organization in Germany, implementation of the Moscow decisions as to demilitarization in Germany, and the United States draft for a four-power treaty for the disarmament and demilitarization of Germany. The Russian Foreign Minister made a stronger appeal than heretofore for German support, calling for an all-German unified state and charging that attempts will be made "by powers who need Germany as a base for the development of war industry and to lead reactionary forces of Germany against the democratic elements of European countries liberated from fascism."

Unspoken thus far, but hovering in all minds at the conference, is the Soviet hostility to the United States plan for European relief and it was significant that while the Ministers were meeting the United States Congress was carrying forward the first step of granting temporary relief. Already the Senate decisively rejected a proposed 30 percent cut in the program, maintaining the $597-million program intact. The delegates, too, could not have missed the significance of Senator Vandenberg's appeal to realism in presenting the program—"As realists we must look to a wholly adequate Armed Defense until such time as dependable alternatives have proven their reliability," nor did they miss his subsequent contention that neither the interim relief program nor its contemplated successor, the Marshall Plan, "is a declaration of economic war between western and eastern Europe, unless Moscow persists in its apparent pathetically mistaken purpose to make it such—to its own everlasting detriment."

Transportation Corps—Maj. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey, Chief of Transportation, received the following visitors this past week: On 17 Nov. Mr. Luke W. Finlay of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, a Colonel in the Transportation Corps Reserve, and Col. Charles F. Nielsen, Air Corps Reserve, a member of the Army Transportation Association, Pacific Southwest Chapter No. 42, Los Angeles, called. Col. Calvin L. Whittle, TC Hq., Second Army, visited General Leavey on 18 Nov.

Signal Corps—The recall to active duty of 100 Signal Corps officers was authorized recently by the Office of The Adjutant General. A similar quota authorized last August was filled in October when the hundredth officer was recalled. Officers with experience in various Signal Corps activities are still urgently needed.

A German Magnetophone, K-7 Model, has been obtained by the Signal Corps and its military characteristics for both field and fixed station equipment are being evaluated by the Coles Signal Laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N. J.

Navy Nurse Corps—Present and former members of the Navy Nurse Corps Reserve who have had previous active duty and who are in the age group of 21-35 may now request transfer to the Nurse Corps, U. S. Navy; nurses in these classifications who are over 35 may request active duty for a period of at least one year under the Reserve Nurse Corps Program previously announced. Former members of the Nurse Corps, U. S. Navy, in the 21-35 age group, may apply for reappointment under this Transfer Program.

Return to active duty, or reappointment, will be at the rank held upon release from duty, in the case of Ensigns, Lieutenants (junior grade) and Lieutenants. Many billets are available in the Navy Nurse Corps, so that duty assignments may be for continental United States or foreign service. Individual preference will be given every consideration.

Army Chaplains Corps—Chaplain (Col.) Patrick J. Ryan, Deputy Chief of Chaplains, USA, officiated at a Memorial Mass held for the Mother of Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stanislaus Ryczek, at St. Hedwigs Church, Wilmington, Del., 22 Nov.

Chaplain (Maj.) Matthew H. Imrie, Officer in Charge, Public Information Division, Office Chief of Chaplains, gave the invocation at the War Veterans Rededication service conducted in Departmental Auditorium, 22 Nov. Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Office Chief of Staff, was the speaker at the meeting.

Chaplain (Maj.) Harold G. Elsam, editor of The Army and Navy Chaplain, spoke at the union service of the Methodist, Baptist and Christian churches held in the Del Ray Baptist Church, Alexandria, Va., Thanksgiving Day.

Army Ground Forces—Brig. Gen. Roderick R. Allen, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, participated in a radio program conducted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, Newport News, Va., which is sponsoring a recruiting drive during the first week of December.

Brig. Gen. Bruce C. Clarke, Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, observed Exercise "Snowdrop," Pine Camp, N. Y., 25-28 Nov.

Col. Samuel L. McCroskey, Chief, Civilian Components Division, and Lt. Col. Thurber G. Richey, Chief, National Guard Branch, attended a conference pertaining to National Guard matters, at the Department of the Army, Washington, D. C., 25 Nov.

Judge Advocate General's Department—The personnel who served in the branch office of The Judge Advocate General with the European Theater of Operations are holding a reunion this week-end in New York City, 28 to 30 Nov. Headquarters are at the Hotel Grammercy Park. More than 100 from all parts of the United States are attending. The office was located in England from July, 1942 to October, 1944, and at Paris, France, until March, 1946. Brig. Gen. Edwin Colyer McNeil was in charge of the office for the last three years.

By appropriate ceremonies on 14 Nov., the Chief of Staff and members of the Judge Advocate General's Section, Fifth Army Headquarters, signaled the retirement of Lt. Col. Verne Sparks, JAGD, at the end of 40 years' service. Colonel Sparks was born in Kokomo, Ind., on 21 Dec. 1887. He attended school and completed one year of high school at Richmond, Ind. With the exception of a few months spent at the AEF University, Beaune, France, Colonel Sparks attended no other educational institution. On 30 June 1907, he entered the service as an enlisted man. Various enlistments were served in the Infantry, Cavalry and Field Artillery. Combat experience was first obtained during the Mexican Campaign in 1916. He followed this up as a First Lieutenant of Infantry in combat during World War I. At the close of World War I, Colonel Sparks was tendered the grade of Warrant Officer, and began that service as Chief Clerk in the Office of the Judge Advocate, Sixth Corps Area. Recognition of his ability, knowledge, interest and enthusiasm for the work of the Section was soon forthcoming. The Corps Area Judge Advocate under whom he served recommended to the War Department that an exception regarding educational qualifications be made in his case, and that he be commissioned a Major in the Judge Advocate General's Department Reserves, stating: "Warrant Officer Sparks, for the past nineteen years, Chief Clerk, Corps Area Judge Advocate's Office, this Headquarters, far surpasses, in military law, knowledge, and natural ability, and general efficiency in a staff judge advocate office, any other officer of that grade with whom I have ever come in official contact. * * * He has acquired a working knowledge of the military law of the land in the same way as a very recent and very distinguished President of the American Bar Association, and the majority of American lawyers of the nineteenth century acquired their knowledge of public and private law, namely, in a law office in the capacity of law clerk; the difference in the instant case being that the law office which provided the requisite training was that of the Judge Advocate Section, Sixth Corps Area Headquarters."

He resumed his commissioned service prior to World War II on 1 Dec. 1940 as a Major, AG Reserve, in the same office where he served as a Warrant officer. He achieved the rank of Lieutenant Colonel on 23 Jan. 1943, and Colonel, AG Reserve, 10 July 1947.

Mr. Peyton Ford, Acting, the Assistant to the Attorney General, spoke to the officers of JAGO in the auditorium of The Pentagon on 25 Nov.

Maj. Rober M. Murray and Capt. Eusebio E. Sciafani have been assigned to Headquarters 6th Army, Presido, San Francisco, California.

Lt. Col. Frank J. Buldain, Inf. has been detailed in JAGD and assigned to JAGO. Capt. John W. Rood, Capt. George F. Westerman, Capt. Frederick R. Clark, Capt. Thomas A. Ryan and Capt. Charles M. Cassel have accepted Regular Army appointments in JAGD.

Quartermaster Corps—A 94-page study entitled "Feeding Problems in Man as Related to Environment" has been published by the Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, Chicago. Col. Charles S. Lawrence, Commanding Officer of the Institute, and Mr. George Gelman, Technical Director announced that the volume is now ready for general distribution.

The study is an analysis of United States and Canadian Army ration trials and surveys during the period 1941 to 1946 and includes data derived from field tests conducted in arctic, sub-arctic, temperate, mountain, desert, tropical and sub-tropical areas. The publication has been prepared in cooperation with the U. S. Army Medical Nutrition Laboratory, Chicago, an installation of the U. S. Surgeon General's Office. Dr. Robert E. Johnson and Robert M. Kark, M.R.C.P. (London), are the authors of the report.

Copies of the report may be procured without charge upon written request to the Technical Information Office, Quartermaster Food and Container Institute for the Armed Forces, 1849 West Pershing Road, Chicago 9, Ill. Requests should be prepared on organization letterheads.

Bureau of Medicine and Surgery—Rear Adm. C. A. Swanson, MC, USN, Surgeon General and Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery has returned after visiting a number of Navy Hospitals and medical facilities in the New England states.

Rear Adm. Lamont Pugh, MC, USN, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery spoke 14 November to the residents, internes, and senior medical students of the Georgetown University Medical School on "Surgery of the Spleen."

Capt. Paul Titus, MC, USNR of Pittsburgh, Penna., and Secretary of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology is on temporary active duty at the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery for the purpose of assisting in the reorganization of the Medical Department Volunteer Reserve, and to aid in the Naval Medical Training Program.

Navy Dental Corps—Lt. Jack F. Flood, DC, USN, has completed four weeks' training at New York City's Memorial Hospital in malignancies of the head and neck. Instruction was under the supervision of Dr. Hayes Martin who is the Chief of the Head and Neck Service of that hospital.

The following two reserve dental officers have been ordered to active duty at the 1st and 7th Naval District Headquarters to assist in carrying out the program for members of the Naval Reserve Dental Corps on inactive duty: Comdr. R. H. Bethel, DC, USNR, has been ordered to duty as the Dental Corps Naval Reserve Representative for the 1st Naval District. Lt. Comdr. S. F. Leichter, DC, USNR, has been ordered to duty as the Dental Corps Naval Reserve Representative for the 7th Naval District.

Army Reserves—Following is an excerpt from Section VI, Department of the Army Circular 35, pertaining to the Organized Reserve Corps:

"By direction of the President and under the provisions of section 37 of the National Defense Act, as amended, the following actions are taken:

"a. The Army Medical Service Corps section (AMS-Res) is established as a section in the Officers' Reserve Corps of the Army of the United States.

"b. All officers in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve, the Pharmacy Corps Reserve, and the Sanitary Corps Reserve are transferred to the Army Medical Service Corps Reserve.

"c. The Medical Administrative Corps, Pharmacy Corps, and Sanitary Corps sections of the Officers' Reserve Corps of the Army of the United States are abolished."

National Guard—The National Guard enlisted 17,539 men in the final week of its recruiting campaign, raising its strength to 195,026 as of 16 Nov., Maj. Gen. Kenneth F. Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, announced 22 Nov.

Authorization for the distribution of $23,621 in enlisted men's funds to National Guard units in Connecticut has been announced.

Approximately 75 per cent of the National Guard's tactical air squadrons have been federally recognized with the recognition of the 168th Light Bombardment Squadron of Illinois.

Pending the printing of changes in NGR-20, 14 Nov. 1946, par 43a thereof is rescinded, and the following substituted therefor: "43. Professional examination for general officers.—a. General.—In the examination of candidates for appointment as general officers, the board will determine whether the candidate meets the requirements of par 27a(1), and may in addition give appropriate consideration to the candidate's service in the National Guard in the position for which he is being examined, or in a position of equal and corresponding responsibility. If it is clearly established that the candidate possesses outstanding abilities determined by consideration of the present state of organization and training of the unit to which he is assigned, and that the candidate is fully qualified for extended active Federal service in the grade and position for which being examined, the board may recommend Federal recognition notwithstanding the provisions of par 27a(1), except that an officer must have served honorably in active Federal service at least six months since 7 December 1941. The board will take such steps as deemed necessary to inquire into the candidate's fitness, and is authorized to call on the Chief, National Guard Bureau, and the appropriate Army commander for such reports as may be required."

Col. Gove C. Cello, jr., USAF, has been assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Materiel, Hqs., USAF, Washington, D. C., for duty with the Special Weapons Group. He formerly was Chief of the Organization and Training Branch, National Guard Bureau.

SERVICE SOCIAL NEWS

LED by the Commander-in-Chief, thousands of Service folk will go to Philadelphia today, 29 Nov. for the football game between Army and Navy.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Kenneth Royall, the Under Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. W. John Kenney, the President's Chief of Staff, Admiral William D. Leahy, and the Army Chief of Staff, and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower will be there.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air and Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, who spent Thanksgiving with his mother, Mrs. Nicholas Brown in Newport, will also be in today's crowd. They are to have with them Vice Admiral and Mrs. Donald B. Duncan, Senator and Mrs. Howard McGrath, Rear Admiral and Mrs. James Fife, jr., the Rev. and Mrs. Arthur Lee Kinsolving of New York and Capt. and Mrs. J. L. Pratt.

With Fleet Admiral and Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz will be their daughter, Miss Nancy Nimitz, Comdr. and Mrs. Chester W. Nimitz, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Watson, Miss Jane Watson, Mr. Richard Watson, President Robert G. Sproul of the University of California and Comdr. and Mrs. Walter L. Small.

The Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift preceded their enjoyment of the game to come by going up to Philadelphia yesterday for a visit with their son and his bride, Lt. Col. and Mrs. Alexander A. Vandegrift, jr.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Johnson Hagood, parents of Mrs. James L. Holloway, will be with the Superintendent of the Naval Academy, Admiral Holloway, making a balance of power for both services. With them will be Col. and Mrs. Johnson Hagood, 3rd, Lt. (USN) and Mrs. James L. Holloway, 3rd, and Comdr. and Mrs. Byron Gurnette.

The Governor of Virginia and Mrs. William M. Tuck are guests of Fleet Admiral and Mrs. William F. Halsey, who daughter of Col. and Mrs. Iverson B. Summers, USA-Ret., whose engagement to Mr. Roderick Errol Kerr of West Point has been announced by her parents.

also have in their party their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Spruance, and the President of the University of Virginia and Mrs. Colgate Darden.

Marine Quartermaster Gen. and Mrs. William P. T. Hill are among those to see the football game today. They went over yesterday and are guests of Col. and Mrs. William Whaling, who are entertaining at cocktails after the game. Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Franklin Hart are also of this party.

The Washington contingent of the Naval Academy class of '21 had a special car to take them to Philadelphia today with Capt. T. L. Wattles in charge.

Admiral J. L. Kauffman, commandant of the Fourth Naval District, and Mrs. Kauffman will entertain at a luncheon before today's game, and the Commanding General of the Marine Barracks and Mrs. William Whaling will give a cocktail party after the game, as will also Lt. Col. and Mrs. A. A. Vandegrift, jr.

Two retiring commanders of the Services met at the dinner party which the Commandant of the Marines and Mrs. Vandegrift gave in honor of Fleet Admiral and Mrs. Chester Nimitz the other evening at the historic Marine Barracks, with the following company to wish them both God-speed: Under Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Kenney, Admiral and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ramsey; Maj. Gen. Clifton Cates, newly named to succeed General Vandegrift; also the Assistant Commandant of the Corps Maj. Gen. Lemuel Shepherd and Mrs. Shepherd, jr.; Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Franklin Hart from Parris Island, Ga., and Mr. and Mrs. Fulton Lewis, jr.

A dinner party was given Friday evening last by Col. and Mrs. George Cocheu, the company meeting in a private dining room of the Army and Navy Club to honor the host's brother, Gen. Frank S. Cocheu, Ret., on his seventy-sixth birthday. Old friends who have served with General Cocheu all over the world since his graduation from the Point in 1894, and joined the Twelfth Infantry regiment at Fort Niobrara, Nebr., made up the company.

Rear Adm. O. S. Colclough, Judge Advocate General of the Navy, and Mrs. Colclough, and Maj. Gen. Thomas H. Green, Judge Advocate General of the Army, and Mrs. Green received the guests at the Judge Advocate General's Department dinner dance recently at the Officers' Club of the Army War College. Weddings and Engagements

BRIG. Gen. and Mrs. Douglas L. Weart announce the engagement of their daughter, Maryade to Capt. Aldo Artiglia, son of Mrs. Q. B. Artiglia of Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Weart is a graduate of Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School of Boston, Mass.

Captain Artiglia is a graduate of Syracuse University, 1939, and at present is in the Air Liaison Office with the Ohio River Division. He served for three years, in the European theater from December, 1943, to December, 1946.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Frank Slingluff of Vienna, Va., formerly of Washington, D. C., and of Jamestown, R. I., has announced the engagement of her daughter, Suzanne, to Franklin Porteous Holcomb, son of Gen. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb, USMC-Ret.

Miss Slingluff is the daughter of the late Comdr. Frank Slingluff, USN, and granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Floyd-Jones of St. Louis, Mo., and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Slingluff of Baltimore, Md. She attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart, Washington, D. C., and was presented to society at a tea and at a dance at the Sulgrave Club, and at the Batchelors Cotillion in Baltimore. She served as a Nurses Aide during the war. She is a member of the Junior League of Washington, the Sulgrave Club and the Society of Naval Sponsors.

Mr. Holcomb's mother is the former Beatrice Miller Clover of Washington, and his father, formerly Commandant of the United States Marine Corps, is now the United States Minister to the Union of South Africa. Mr. Holcomb is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holcomb of New Castle, Del., and the late Rear Admiral and Mrs. Richardson Clover of Washington and California.

The prospective bride-groom was graduated from St. George's School, Newport, R. I., and from the Georgetown School of Foreign Service. During the war he served in the North African, Mediterranean and European theaters and was placed on inactive status as a Major, U. S. Marine Corps Reserves. He is a member of the Chevy Chase Club and the Army-Navy Club.

The date of the wedding will be announced later.

Col. and Mrs. Iverson B. Summers of East St. Louis, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Pauline Dodson Summers, to Mr. Roderick Kerr of West Point, New York.

Miss Summers attended Packer Collegiate Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y., Ward Belmont, Nashville, Tenn., the University of Mexico, Mexico City, and will be graduated in June from Connecticut College for Women, New London, Conn.

Mr. Kerr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Errol Kerr of New York City and Great Barrington, Mass. He served for five years, with overseas service, during the late war, leaving the service with the grade of major. Mr. Kerr is manager of the U. S. Hotel Thayer at West Point, New York. He is a member of the Raquet and Tennis Club of New York City.

The wedding is planned for June.

Col. and Mrs. Holland L. Robb announce the marriage of their older daughter, Janice Elizabeth, to Mr. William Summers Anderson of Hongkong, China, at a ceremony administered by Chaplain S. Louis Armstrong at the GHQ Chapel Center at 3:30 in the afternoon of 8 Oct. in Tokyo, Japan.

Miss Robb has been employed as a War Department Civilian in Tokyo for about a year, recently as a feature writer on the staff of the Stars and Stripes. Mr. Anderson was born in China and raised and educated in Shanghai and Hongkong, and is of Scotch-English parentage and is an English citizen. He met the bride when he came to Tokyo to testify at the Monor War Crimes Trials, since he had been a Prisoner of War after the fall of the Hongkong Defense Army of which he was a part and for two of the four years was held a prisoner in Nagoya, Japan. He is now the Hongkong manager of National Cash Register Company, and the young couple will reside at 2 Stanley Village Road there.

After a short musicale interlude when two of the bride's favorite songs were sung, she entered on the arm of her father with one attendant, Miss Virginia Jenkins of Enid, Okla., maid of honor. The bride wore a most becoming gown of blue satin, with fitted bodice and Victorian draped bertha, softly caught at the center front with a pink cameo, gift of her maternal grandmother, and hand-some beneath a string of Japanese pearls. The front of the skirt was gracefully draped at each side and the back was gathered fully below a V-shaped hipline. She carried a Victorian bouquet of pale pink dahlias ringed with white carnations and set off by paper lace, and wore a coronet of the same flowers in her hair.

The ritual was uniquely altered when the groom and subsequently the bride spoke the vows, memorized perfectly, instead of repeating the series of phrases after the minister, as is customary.

The best man was Mr. Gerald Carey of Tokyo and the ushers were Maj. J. C. Galbreath, Mr. Henry Prien, Mr. George Hurd, Lt. William Glynn and Mr. Murray Gray.

A reception followed the ceremony, at the Imperial Hotel, attended by a hundred of the friends of the bride, the groom and Colonel and Mrs. Robb. After a short honeymoon at the British Kavana Rest Hotel on the Izu peninsula, the Andersons flew to their home in Hongkong.

Unable to attend the wedding due to distance, were the bride's only sister, Eleanor Ann Robb who is at present in Athens, Greece, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Reiners of Hongkong.

The chapel was decorated with large daisy type, white and yellow chrysanthemums with a green garland intertwined with daisies along the altar rail and on the front pews. On the altar were large candelabra and generous brass vases of white blooms.

Miss Robb was graduated from Woodrow Wilson High School, Washington, D. C., in 1937 and from Swarthmore College in 1942, after which she was trained and employed by International Business Machines Corporation in their Washington office, before coming to Tokyo. Colonel Robb is in command of the 32nd Engineer Construction Group supervising the construction of Misawa Air Base on northern Honshu.

Miss Shirley Doris Kreinheder, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Walter R. Kreinheder, 511 North Tenth Street, Leavenworth, and Mr. Gorman Daniel Howell, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Howell, Clarinda, Iowa, were married at the Post Chapel, 9 Nov. Chaplain (Maj.) Arthur H. Marsh officiated at the double ring service. Following a tour of the Southern states, Mr. and Mrs. Howell will be at home in Clarinda, Iowa, where the bridegroom is engaged in the automobile business.

In a ceremony at the Chapel of the Greenville Air Base, 15 Nov., Mrs. Stella O'Brien, of Alliance, Nebr., became the bride of Col. Maurice M. Beach, of Warner Robins Field, Macon, Ga.

Mrs. Beach is the former secretary of Maj. Gen. Paul L. Williams, Commanding General of the Second Air Force, and former Ninth Air Force commander at Greenville. Colonel Beach, who served during the war as a Brig. General in command of the 53rd Troop Carrier Wing, a part of General William's 9th (Please turn to Page 349)

The military and civilian personnel of the Hawaiian Medical Depot, sponsored a dinner party at Lau Yee Chai's in Honolulu, 19 Nov. honoring Lt. Col. and Mrs. Edward M. Wones upon the occasion of Lt. Col. Wones' completion of 30 years' service in the Regular Army.

Maj. C. S. Marchek, depot executive officer, extended congratulations for the group to Col. and Mrs. Wones and recalled the highlights of Colonel Wones' long and distinguished service. Colonel Wones expressed gratification that he could be associated with such a cosmopolitan and loyal group at such an auspicious occasion and remarked that he found Army life and his present assignment so pleasant that he had discarded thoughts of retirement, preferring to stay in Hawaii until his rotation date which corresponds to the end of the school year and will permit their son, David, to complete his sophomore year with his class at Punahou. Their other son, Dr. Edward M. Wones, Jr., has a res-dency in ophthalmology at the Presbyterian Hospital in Chicago and their daughter, Mrs. D. E. Culver, wife of a lieutenant in the Air Force, is at Fairfield-Suisun, Calif. Mrs. Wones was formerly a member of the Army Nurse Corps and served during World War I.

Colonel Wones has commanded the Hawaiian Medical Depot since Jan. 1946. Prior to coming to Hawaii, Colonel Wones was Executive to the Surgeon, Sixth Corps Area, Commanding Officer of the Denver Medical Depot and Executive Officer, Winter General Hospital, successively. Lieutenant Colonel Wones is the senior officer of the new Medical Service Corps.

The following depot officers and their wives were present: Maj. Arthur H. Kopp, MSC; Maj. C. S. Marchek, MSC; Capt. C. T. Olson, MSC; 1st Lt. James E. Wilson, MSC, and 1st Lt. R. S. LaFrankie, MSC.

FAIRFIELD-SUISUN FIELD, CALIF.

24 Nov. 1947

The Non-Commissioned Officers of Fairfield were hosts to the Kiwanians of Napa and Vallejo in a banquet-dinner and tour of the post's facilities, 13 Nov. It was the first type of such activity for the NCOs and their new club, perhaps the first time NCOs of the Services have had the opportunity to entertain in this manner.

The Kiwanis Club members of the two neighboring cities attending numbered 110 for the occasion. There were 30 hosts from the enlisted ranks with Col. Russell Kellor and Maj. William Lewis also attending. Mr. Charles Ludlow, president of the Vallejo Kiwanians, and Mr. Jack Murdoch, president of the Napa club, conducted a joint meeting of their respective clubs during the evening.

Toastmaster McCarthy and Sgt. "Tiny" Kaplan performed yeoman services as hosts at the huge dinner table, nearly bringing it down with high good humor. Turkey with all the trimmings headed the heavy menu.

 24 Nov. 1947

A farewell dinner party for Brig. Gen. and Mrs. W. N. Gillmore was held at the Main Post Officers' Club 21 Nov. Among those present were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Leroy Irwin, commanding Fifth Corps; Maj. Gen. James Gavin, commanding general 82nd Airborne Division, and Unit Commanders and Staff Officers of the 82nd Abn. Div.

General Gillmore, Commanding General of the Division Artillery of the 82nd Airborne Division, will leave 11 Jan., to take command of the 11th Abn. Div. Artillery in Japan.

Officers of the 325 Glider Infantry Regiment and their wives and girl friends staged a "Saddle Hawkins Day" party and dance 14 Nov.

The styles winning prizes for best character portrayals were 1st Lt. Perle C. Kenyon as "Hairless Joe" and Mrs. Sue Heaton (wife of Capt. Wm. P. Heaton) as "Mammy Yokum." Music for the festivities was imported from the mountains and furnished by Lt. Col. Jack Norton (mouth organ), Lt. Col. William N. Holm (sweet potato), and Maj. John J. Gildee, Jr. (flute).

The only casualty of the evening was Lt. Col. John L. Dewitt, Jr., who suffered a broken toe when during the square dance a mule stepped on it.

WALLER FIELD, TRINIDAD, B. W. I.
 15 Nov. 1947

Remembrance Day—Armistice Day to Americans—was observed on Sunday, 9 Nov., in Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. Col. John M. Schweizer, Jr., Commanding Officer of the U. S. Air Base in Trinidad, was the Air Force representative at the impressive ceremony held beside the towering, white granite base, of the Peace statue, at Memorial Park, Port-of-Spain, Trinidad.

The ceremony opened with the arrival of the Governor, Sir John Shaw and Lady Shaw, escorted by 24 plume-helmeted Lancers. The Governor was escorted to his place beneath the towering symbol of World War I, by the Island Commissioner. Prior to the period of silence, wreaths were placed by members of the official party. Colonel Schweizer placed a wreath as the token of the American military dedication of the day.

The first rocket burst high above the Park at 11 o'clock, announcing the two minutes of prayer and meditation. The second rocket, at 11:02, brought the delegation to attention and salute. The National Anthem climaxed the ceremony.

Maj. Michael W. Keller, assigned to the Post since its activation, has been awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Ribbon.

Maj. Victor Warcholik was assigned as Post Adjutant 16 Nov. replacing Maj. Duane C. Ayers who left for the ORD, Ft. Lawton, Wash., for transfer to Japan.

"UNITED STATES AT WAR"

• A limited number of copies of the Army and Navy Journal's historic volumes, "United States At War" is still available. This series, the first volume of which was published 7 December 1942 with succeeding volumes each year until the War's end, forms a complete history of World War II in authoritative articles written by Military, Naval and civilian leaders actually in charge of the operations in the active theaters and at home. Profusely illustrated, they merit a place in every well balanced library.

A small number of each of the four volumes is ready for distribution at $3.00 per copy in paper binding and $5.00 in cloth binding. (Volume I is available only in paper binding.)

WESTRADEN, GERMANY
 15 Nov. 1947

On 11 Nov. 1947, Brig. Gen. F. B. Prickett, Commanding General of the First Constabulary Brigade, was decorated with the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with Palm, by Maj. Gen. Paul Devinch. The ceremony took place at Bad Kreuznach, Germany, where General Devinch's Headquarters is located. He commands the Northern Zone of the French Zone of Occupation of Germany.

With 30-odd officers and enlisted men from 1st Brigade as spectators, a review was held following the decoration ceremony. Among the units passing was a battalion of the 7th Algerian Infantry Regiment, elements of the mechanized 3rd Spahis Regiment and Headquarters Company of the French Northern Zone Headquarters.

General Prickett commanded the 75th Infantry Division during its combat in the ETO up to becoming Deputy Commanding General of the XXI Corps early in 1945. After combat he commanded the 10th Armored Division for several months until he took the 4th Armored Division over. When this Division Headquarters was reorganized as Headquarters 1st Constabulary Brigade, General Prickett retained command. He relinquished his command today to return to the United States after a short trip in the European Command.

FOR YOUR FRIENDS IN THE ARMED FORCES!

Racking your brains for a PERSONAL Christmas gift when every dollar counts for living expenses, there is a grand solution: A present of the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, The Gazette of the Land, Sea and Air.

A subscription to the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL for husband, brother or sweetheart means that for fifty-two times in the coming year your Christmas thought will be refreshed in the mind of the recipient. It will be appreciated by the soldier, the sailor or the airman.

Because, in the weekly ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL there will be found all the news so vital to their welfare.

Because, all Executive and Congressional acts will be reported in its columns.

Because of its publication of official circulars and reports and matters of service interest.

Because of its discussions of foreign relations.

Because of its forthright editorials.

Because, going on 85 years young, it vigorously and forcefully advocates all policies important to the welfare of the Services and with equal vigor and force opposes those harmful to them.

To insure prompt delivery of this exceptional CHRISTMAS GIFT simply clip and mail the attached coupon immediately:

ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL, INC.
1711 Connecticut Avenue, N. W., Washington 9, D. C.

Natalie Desautels

Natalie Desautels, 15 year old daughter of Lt. Comdr. (Medical Corps, USN-Ret.) and Mrs. Albert J. Desautels, 128 Frisco Drive, Warrington, Fla., was instantly killed in an automobile accident 15 Nov. The accident occurred near Mobile, Ala., while en route to the Tulane-Florida football game, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Renfro, of Warrington and their son, Lawrence, 18, a freshman at the University of Florida.

Miss Desautels was a senior at Pensacola High School and a member of the Sports Club and Spanish Club of that school.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by a sister, Betty Jo.

Funeral services were held Monday, 17 Nov. at the Catholic Chapel of the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, with burial at the Barrancas National Cemetery.

1st Lt. Lawrence S. Carson, jr., USA-Ret.

1st Lt. Lawrence Scott Carson, jr., USA-Ret., died 10 Nov. at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md., after a long illness.

He was the son of the late Col. Lawrence Scott Carson, Cav. and Mrs. Carson, and grandson of the late Capt. Elisha Carson and Mrs. Carson of Sumter, S. C., and of the late Capt. Francis Asbury Halliday, MC, USA-Ret., and of Mrs. Francis Asbury Halliday.

Survivors are his widow, Ida May Rice Carson; his mother Mrs. Lawrence Scott Carson, sr., widow of Col. Lawrence Scott Carson, sr., 2112 "O" Street, NW, Washington, D. C.; his uncle, Dr. Charles H. Halliday, Assistant Director of the State Board of Health of Maryland and Manning Wayfreed Halliday, and his aunt, Mrs. Laurin Leonard Lawson, widow of Brig. Gen. Laurin Leonard Lawson; his uncle, Elisha Scott Carson of Sumter, S. C., and aunts Mrs. E. P. Martin; Mrs. Otto W. Rethorst, wife of Col. Otto W. Rethorst, Cav. Ret. of Piedmont, Calif.; and Mrs. Mattie Wells of Oakland, California; his cousins, Mrs. Samuel A. Kimberly, 2112 "O" Street, NW, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. H. T. Watts, Charleston, S. C.; Mr. H. O. Strobecker, Principal of Charleston High School, Charleston, S. C.; Maj. Scott Strobecker, Germany; Mrs. Laurin Lawson Paige of San Rafael, Calif.; Mrs. William White Dick, jr., wife of Col. William White Dick, jr., FA.

Lieutenant Carson was born 4 Feb. 1904 at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. He was graduated from Porter Military Academy, Charleston, S. C., had one year at West Point, and attended Virginia Military Institute.

Interment was in Arlington National Cemetery.

Col. William Jefferson Glasgow, jr., GSC.

Col. William Jefferson Glasgow, jr., GSC, member of the Joint Strategic Plans and Operations Group, General Headquarters, Far East Command, died suddenly on 14 Nov. 1947, near Ishikari, Hokkaido, near Sapporo.

Before joining JSPOG in January, 1947, Colonel Glasgow held one of the leading planning positions in G-4, GHQ, FEC. He joined General MacArthur's headquarters in 1945 and was one of the chief planners for the detailed logistic support of the second of the two large scale projected invasions of Honshu in the operation "Coronet." Prior to joining General MacArthur's staff he served in Africa as a member of the planning group for the invasion of Sicily and Italy.

Funeral services will be held in El Paso, Tex., about 8 Dec.

Rear Adm. John J. Gaffney

Rear Adm. John J. Gaffney, USN, died

at Oakland, Calif., 21 Nov., at the age of 56. He had been ill for one week.

Admiral Gaffney, senior officer of the Supply Corps on active duty, was born in Charleston, S. C., 5 March 1891. After attending the College of Charleston and St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., he was commissioned an Ensign on 20 Sept. 1912. During World War II he served as Supply Officer of the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard, District Supply Officer for the 14th Naval District and Supply Officer in Command of the Naval Supply Depot, Pearl Harbor. His ability to plan the problems of logistics far ahead of actual need played a major part in the successes of the Pacific Fleet throughout the war period, and for his successful handling of these assignments he was awarded the Legion of Merit.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Walmata

Walsh Gaffney, of Charleston; a son, John Jerome, jr.; and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Bridewell, wife of Cmdr. E. W. Bridewell, USN; Mrs. Gloria Andrews, widow of Lt. Cmdr. Frank Van Dyke Andrews, USN; and Mrs. Lurline Gaffney Eisenbach.

Burial services were held in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Charleston, on 28 Nov.

Rear Adm. John Morris Smealie

Rear Adm. John Morris Smealie, USN (Ret.) died at Lafayette, Ind., on 24 Nov. while en route from Washington to California. Death was caused by a heart attack.

Adm. Smealie was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1905. During the first world war he served aboard the USS Florida as navigator, followed by duty as was the first of the fall season activities of the Judge Advocate General's Department, and more than 200 guests were present.

In honor of Dr. Frank H. Lahey, Director of Surgery at the Lahey Clinic, Boston, Mass., and the guest speaker at the Navy's Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., Friday night. Rear Adm. Lamont Pugh, MC, USN, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery, invited a few guests to dinner at the town Army-Navy Club preceding Dr. Lahey's lecture. Those attending were Rear Adm. Clifford A. Swanson, Surgeon General and Chief of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery; Dr. Raymond T. Holden, President of the District of Columbia Medical Society; Father Paul McNally, Dean and Regent of the Georgetown School of Medicine and Regent of the School of Dentistry; Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, Dean of the George Washington School of Medicine; Rear Adm. T. C. Anderson, Medical Officer in Command at the National Naval Medical Center, and Capt. R. P. Parsons, Commanding Officer of the Navy's Medical School at Bethesda.

Col. and Mrs. Harold C. Mabbott have recently moved to Swarthmore, Pa., where they have purchased a home at 417 Harvard Avenue. Colonel Mabbott, Coast Artillery, retired 31 Oct.

Col. John N. Hauser, FA, USA, and Mrs. Hauser recently returned to Camp Stewart, Hinesville, Ga., from a two-weeks leave. They visited their many friends at Fort Bragg, N. C., where Colonel Hauser was Deputy Post Commander under Maj. Gen. Leroy S. Irwin, before going to Georgia.

The Hausers then went to Chapel Hill, where they visited their older son, Chuck, who is a sophomore at the University of North Carolina and lives at the A T O Fraternity House. From there they went to Asheville to visit friends and be with their younger son, Bill, who is at Christ School, Arden, N. C. After a few days at Mrs. Hauser's former home, Newton, N. C., they visited Lt. Col. and Mrs. J. D. McCullough at their ancestral home in Greenville, S. C., and Col. and Mrs. Paul Prentiss, who have recently moved to the Greenville Army Air Base from Pope Field, Ft. Bragg.

The oldest son of the Hausers, Capt. John N. Hauser, Jr., West Point graduate of Class of 1941, died in 1944.

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. DeRussy Hoyle have opened their new home at 80 Hepburn Road, Hamden, Conn.

Mrs. Hoyle is a sister of Mrs. Frederick W. Watrous.

Colonel and Mrs. Watrous have a home at 49 Carew Road, Hamden, just around the corner from the Hoyle's.

Col. Rollo P. Boubon, MC, has retired during the past month after 30 years' service. Colonel and Mrs. Boubon have moved into their new home at 422 Calle Granada, Santa Barbara, Calif., where they expect to make their permanent residence. They have many friends there and throughout the state as Colonel Boubon was Chief of Medical Service at the Hoff General Hospital in Santa Barbara in 1941 and 1942 and his last duty assignment was Chief of Professional Services at the Fort Ord Hospital at Monterey the past year.

Maj. Allen Bennett, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Bennett are making their home in Ft. Myers, Fla.

Col. and Mrs. John W. Carroll are now residing in their home "Whitewood Cabin" near The Plains, Va., which they purchased previous to Colonel Carroll's retirement on 31 Aug., after more than 30 years' service.

Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Oscar W. Griswold have taken an apartment at "The Broadmoor," Colorado Springs, Colo., and will spend the winter there.

Capt. S. B. Dunlap, USN, has been relieved of his command of the USS Siboney and been ordered for duty on the staff of the U. S. Naval War College, Newport, R. I.

Captain and Mrs. Dunlap and two children will be residing at No. 4 Red Cross Terrace, until January, when they will establish a permanent home at 86 Washington St., Newport, R. I.

Col. Charles B. Meyer, Ret., and Mrs. Meyer, who have been spending the summer at Bradenton, Fla., have moved into their new home in that city, 2818 First Ave., W.

Col. William J. Froitzheim, Ret., and Mrs. Froitzheim, who came from Ft. Hancock in July, are now living in their new home, 2305 Eighth Ave., W. Bradenton, Fla.

Mrs. A. T. Smith, widow of Brig. Gen. Smith, entertained at a luncheon recently at the Army and Navy Club in honor of Mrs. William M. Hoge, wife of the commanding general at Fort Belvoir. General Hoge was the late General Smith's engineer officer when he commanded the Philippine Division.

In the large gathering were Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Stanley D. Embick, Mrs. Samuel C. Talbot, Mrs. Arthur Mason Chichester, Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, Mrs. Clark Howell Woodward, Mrs. J. Weldon Jones, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. Gordon R. Young, Mrs. Randolph Coyle, Mrs. A. Waller, Miss Marguerite Woolson of Manila, Mrs. George W. Cocheu, Mrs. George A. Horkan, Mrs. Leonard Block, Mrs. Albert J. Bowley, Mrs. Hayes Kroner, Mrs. Charles Adams Baker and Mrs. Reid Page Clark.

Completing the list were Mrs. Robert Eustis Hoyt, Mrs. Frank H. Partridge, Mrs. Samuel Mackall, Mrs. Nicholson Crean, Mrs. Albert T. Fletcher, Mrs. William C. Gwynn, Mrs. Conger Pratt, Mrs. Edward D. Anderson, Mrs. William A. Goodman, Mrs. Robert B. Carney, Mrs. Consuelo A. Seane, Mrs. Newton Blue, Miss Grace Oumpangh, Mrs. J. D. Gilliam, Mrs. Harold Strickland, Mrs. Merrill Spalding and Mrs. William McMillan and Mrs. John D. Long, both of Baltimore.

Chaplain Floyd S. Smith, 9th Air Force Staff Chaplain, officiated at the ceremony, while Col. Henry D. Smith, 9th Air Force A-1, acted as best man. The bride was given away by Col. R. T. Jenkins. Mrs. Thelma S. Smith, wife of Col. Smith, was matron of honor.

The bride wore an ice-blue suit with palmamino accessories and brown orchid corsage. Following the wedding, a reception was held at the Poinsett Hotel in Greenville.

Guests at the wedding included Col. and Mrs. Frank J. McNeese, Mr. and Mrs. Beach, father and mother of Col. Beach, of Detroit Mich., Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Peters, Greenville, S. C., Miss Anner Walke and Miss Alice Terrace, also of Greenville Air Base.

The wedding of Miss Doris Nadine Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Raymond Hall, Houston, Tex., and Maj. Oris Eugene McGregor, Jr., USA, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oris E. McGregor of Temple, Tex., was solemnized in a candle-light ceremony 16 Nov., in the Church of Saint John the Divine, Houston, Tex.

The bride wore an original model of pearl white satin created along Edwardian lines with molded bodice and voluminous circular skirt which fell into a Court train. The front of the bodice was hand embroidered in seed pearls in a sunburst design. A tricorn hat of satin and pearls held her veil of French illusion. She carried a prayer book topped with a yellow-throated white orchid with a shower of butterfly orchids. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Nancy Eidson was maid of honor and Misses Rose Marie Colca and Faye Smith were bridesmaids.

Best man was Lt. Col. Hugh Cameron, Oxford, N. C., and ushers were Capt. John Allen Banister, Jr., Fort Worth, Tex., Elston Heath Colgan, Arlington, Tex., Paul M. McPherson, San Antonio, Tex., and Cadet George Marlette.

A reception was held following ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

After a wedding trip to New York City, Major and Mrs. McGregor will be stationed in Washington, D. C., where he is a detailed member of the General Staff Corps, Department of the Army. The couple will be at home in Falls Church, Va. Mrs. McGregor attended Sullins College in Bristol, Va., and Major McGregor attended Pasadena Junior College and received his Bachelor of Arts Degree from Texas A & M.

Association of Military Schools

The thirty-second annual meeting of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States was held at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, D. C., on 19 and 20 Nov.

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall, was one of the principal speakers during the two-day session. He paid glowing tribute to the World War II military accomplishments of the more than 60,000 alumnae of the institutions represented by the Association.

At the close of the session new officers were chosen for 1948. Maj. Gen. M. G. Baker, Superintendent of Valley Forge Military Academy, and Dean H. M. Smith, Bordentown Military Institute, were re-elected to the positions of President and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively.

Col. W. E. Gregory, Superintendent of Culver Military Academy, replaced Col. B. B. Bouton, Howe Military Academy, as Vice-President.

Also in the final phase of the meeting, the constitution was changed to provide for the retention of two members of the Executive Committee from year to year. The new member selected was Brig. Gen. Sandy Beaver, Riverside Military Academy.

The first session, 19 Nov., was opened with an invocation by the Very Rev. Vincent Flynn, president of St. Thomas Military Academy, and featured a short talk by General Baker, president of the Association. There was a seminar on the subject, "How successfully do we academically prepare our students, and what can we give them which civilian schools cannot?" The Rev. Dr. Donald Henning, rector of Shattuck Schools, was chairman.

In the afternoon there was a seminar on "How well do we militarily prepare our students?" at which Brig. Gen. Earl McFarland, of Stunant Military Academy, a member of the Association's Executive Committee, was chairman.

Two seminars were held 20 Nov., one on the development of member-school cooperation, with Maj. E. W. Tucker, executive officer of Kemper Military School, as chairman, and one on the legislative policy of the Association with Col. W. E. Gregory, superintendent of Culver Military Academy, as chairman.

At the closing session there was a report on the activities of the American Council on Education by Dean Harold M. Smith, of Bordentown Military Institute.

Following Secretary Royall's address at the luncheon Thursday there were addresses by Lt. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, USA, Deputy Chief of Staff of the Army, and Senator Edward Martin (R-Pa.). Also at the luncheon General Baker was presented with a silver tray by Colonel Partello, superintendent of the New York Military Academy, on behalf of the Association for outstanding accomplishments during his two years as President of the Association.

Maj. Gen. Mantion S. Eddy, Chief of Information of the Department of the Army, spoke before the Association Wednesday evening. In the course of his remarks, General Eddy said:

"It is perfectly clear how great a role has been played in the progress of America by the member institutions of this association. To them belongs a large portion of the credit for the development of the military tradition of the United States.

"And this military tradition is something we should hold as important as any other aspect of that amazing mixture of factors which make America the great nation that it is today.

"To me the great value of the essentially military school or college is one from which the nation reaps the major benefit. The great emphasis that schools of this type place on the loyalty and responsibility that one owes his country has meant more to the safety and welfare of our country than can ever be estimated.

"No one can appreciate this more than the professional military man, because the very essence of his code in life is duty and loyalty to his country.

"The country can be proud of its military profession and its traditions, and constantly should take stock of the great contributions the military has made to our national life. The deep and vital pride of service to country can be crushed if the professional soldier continues to be the object of scorn and abuse by a growing, menacing element of our population.

"My message to you, then, is that the people must decide whether or not they will abandon the great virtues and benefits which the military profession has given our country.

"And they must appreciate clearly that it is in institutions such as yours where such teachings are really derived.

"Unless the country is to lose something irreplaceable, the people must hold the American military tradition in the same high esteem as does this Association, which has so greatly contributed to that tradition."

USMA and USNA '15 Meet

The Classes of 1915 of the U. S. Military Academy and the U. S. Naval Academy held a class luncheon at the Officers' Mess in the Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., 25 Nov.

These joint Annapolis-West Point luncheons have been held consistently by the two Classes of 1915 since graduation. The personal contacts and the interservice friendships that have been engendered have carried the members through two World Wars. The splendid spirit of co-operation that has manifested itself throughout the years in these interservice luncheons has set such an example of good will and understanding that now other graduates of the service academies are following the precedent set by 1915 and are holding joint class luncheons of their own.

The following members of the Class of 1915, U. S. Military Academy attended:

Col. Joseph D. Arthur, Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand, Brig. Gen. J. S. Bragdon, Col. Frederic W. Boye, General Omar Bradley, Brig. Gen. John S. Conklin, General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Brig. Gen. Vernon Evans, Col. Clifford R. Jones, Maj. Gen. Thomas B. Larkin, Brig. Gen. Pearson Menoher, Col. M. J. O'Brien, Maj. Gen. George J. Richards, Brig. Gen. Henry B. Saylor, Col. Richard C. Stickney, Col. Edward C. Wallington, and Col. Mason J. Young.

The following members of the Class of 1915, U. S. Naval Academy attended:

FINANCE

Financial Digest

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson has gone into detail before the House-Senate Economic Committee on two of President Truman's ten anti-inflation proposals. The points specifically mentioned were:

Empower the Department of Agriculture to prescribe margin requirements or cash payments, for any agricultural product or by-product traded on commodity exchanges. President Truman, at his press conference last Friday, asserted that margins for trading on commodity exchanges should be placed under government control.

Authorize the Commodity Credit Corporation to underwrite foreign crop production. Also to furnish farm supplies to foreign countries and give them advice on increasing their crops.

Secretary Anderson admitted that exchanges generally have followed the Department's suggestions for increasing margins and agreed that should Congress give him the authority asked he would only prescribe the 33 1/3 per cent margin now required generally by the exchanges themselves.

A joint Commerce Department and Labor Department forecast says that new construction next year will reach $15.2 billion. This would represent a 20 per cent gain over the $12.6 billion total now expected for 1947. The 1942 peak was $13.4 billion. The study predicted that building will start on 950,000 privately financed family dwellings next year. This compares with 860,000 in 1947. The report foresees a drop in new industrial building from $1,695 million in 1947 to $1,350 million in 1948.

The Commerce Department reports that consumer short-term debt reached a record high of $11.4 billion 30 Sept.

Bombers "Attack" Fleet

Davis-Monthan Field, Tucson, Ariz.—Locating an enemy naval task force is a problem within itself, but airmen from Davis-Monthan Field were further hampered with stormy weather and floods during recent operations from Langley Field, Va.

Five crews each from the 63rd and 65th Bombardment Squadrons of the 43rd Bombardment Wing stationed at Tucson, participated in the maneuvers against a naval task force operating under cover of stormy weather in the vicinity of Bermuda.

The crews, ready for instant action against any enemy in the defense of the United States, were greeted with floods, fog, and instrument weather while in Virginia.

MERCHANT MARINE

Merchant Marine

The new Merchant Marine program, outlined last week in the ARMY AND NAVY JOURNAL following the report of President Truman's five-man Committee on the Merchant Marine, specifically proposes, in addition to the construction of 46 passenger liners, the following:

Construction of high speed cargo ships and tankers; 50 per cent subsidy for the construction of ships; reorganization of the Maritime Commission; permit unsubsidized lines to deposit funds for replacement with the same tax benefits as those enjoyed by the subsidized lines; revitalize domestic shipping; government aid for ship construction for trades to Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska; continuation of seamen's training programs, sponsorship of the United Seamen's Service by the Maritime industry; distribution of new construction among yards to prevent concentration of shipbuilding activity; and continuation of operating subsidies.

The passenger ship features of the new program call for the building of two 50,000-ton liners for the trans-Atlantic trade, one 24,000-ton liner for service to Germany, two 22,000-ton liners for operation across the Pacific, three 21,000-ton vessels for service to the Mediterranean, three 20,000-ton ships for operation to South America, and two 20,000-ton ships for service to Australasia.

Five 18,000-ton vessels would be built for Atlantic and Pacific coastwise services, five 13,500-ton ships for operation to the Baltic, and a single 12,000-ton liner for Gulf to South American operation. Four 10,000-ton ships would be built for operation to London and 16 vessels under 10,000 tons for Caribbean, South American, Alaskan and inter-island services.

manding officer of the 43rd Bombardment Wing, of which the two squadrons are units, the Eighth Air Force Composite Group "bombed" the naval task force with radar on two separate missions.

The initial raid, made from Langley called for expert flying on the part of crews with pilots making instrument takeoffs from the fog shrouded Virginia base and navigators and radar operators combining all their skills to bring the air armada over the fleet while combating the weather.

Bombardiers found a brief opening in the cloud cover to release their bombs while gunners stayed off slashing "attacks" by naval fighter cover from the carrier, USS Midway. The fleet consisted of a battleship, three cruisers, six destroyers, and auxiliary craft in addition to the super carrier.

Battling their way back to Langley through the same rainstorms, the crews fell into bunks after twelve hours in the air, but were on the line again the next morning to make another "attack" on the fleet. Splendid cooperation between the navigator - bombardier - radar operator team produced excellent bombing results despite the inclement weather.

After paying tribute to General Frank M. Andrews, (killed in a crash at Greenland early in the war) in a mass flight over Arlington National Cemetery with other Strategic Air Command B-29's, the Tucson squadrons returned to Arizona.

Commanding the 65th Squadron was Lt. Col. Jack J. Catton, Lt. Col. Alvin N. Moore commanded the 63rd Squadron. Lt. Col. Olbert F. Lassiter, 43rd Wing operations officer, conducted the briefings of the crews.

Chaplains-Churchmen Meeting

The ninth in a series of Chaplains-Churchmen conferences being held in major cities of the United States was held in Chicago, at the Chicago Temple (Methodist), on 20 Nov. The conferences are being held under the auspices of the General Commission on Chaplains of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Similar conferences have been held so far in New York, San Francisco, Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk, San Diego, Long Beach and Seattle. Future conferences will be held in Minneapolis, Denver, Kansas City, San Antonio, New Orleans, Fayetteville (Ark.), Columbus, Ga., Jacksonville, and Washington, D. C.

Chief of Chaplains Luther D. Miller represented Army chaplains, and Chaplain Frank F. Smart, Jr., Administrative Chaplain of the Great Lakes Naval Training Center represented Chief of Navy Chaplains William N. Thomas on the program.

The newly appointed Chief of the Veterans Administration Chaplaincy, A. J. McKelway, presented a survey of the ministry in the Veterans Administration hospitals.

The Rev. Charles R. Goff, D.D., Minister, The Chicago Temple, spoke on "The Responsibility of the Church in the Church-Chaplain Partnership."

Representing the armed services was Capt. Merrill Comstock, USN, Deputy Commandant and Chief of Staff, Great Lakes, Ill., who addressed the luncheon group on the topic "As A Commanding Officer Sees It."

The viewpoint of the civilian clergyman was presented by the Rev. Mitchell T. Ancker, a former Navy chaplain, now minister at the United Church of Hyde Park. His theme was "Facing the Task."

Others appearing on the program were: Chaplain Peter C. Schroder, Fifth Army Chaplain; Chaplain Joseph A. Mears, Hines Hospital; and the Rev. Delmar L. Dyreson, Washington, D. C., Associate Director of The General Commission on Chaplains and Editor of The Chaplain and The Link magazines.

Claiming that what happens spiritually to personnel who enter the armed forces is primarily the responsibility of the churches, Dr. Albert J. McCartney, chairman of the Chicago committee made the observation that:

"When a man enters the armed forces, whether it be in war time or in peace time, many ministers think that he becomes the chaplain's responsibility only, but in reality both the service man and the chaplain become the responsibility of the denomination and the home pastor. A recent survey showed 1,700,000 in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Coast Guard, and Veterans Administration hospitals."

Totality of National Defense

National Defense cannot be left to the Armed Forces themselves but "is a problem embracing the totality of government, and so in organization must see its leadership and its agencies at the very top level of Government," according to a report to Secretary of the Army Royall released this week.

The report, by Maj. Gen. C. F. Robinson, USA, was entitled "Foreign Logistical Organizations and Methods." General Robinson was assisted in his study by Col. Robert C. Kyser, QMC, and Lt. Col. John D. Millett, AUS, Associate Professor of Public Administration at Columbia University.

Summarizing the problems of defense, the report stated:

"The problems of national defense organization can be divided into three broad phases. In the first place, while land, sea, and air forces have their highly distinctive characteristics, they also have much in common. Military operations require the joint use of all three to accomplish the strategic objectives of a nation. Today this fact is commonly recognized. The need has been organizationally recognized by imposing a coordinating burden upon the political head of the state, assisted by some kind of additional machinery. In Germany there was an Armed Forces High Command; in Britain today, there is the Ministry of National Defense; in France a Secretary of State to the Prime Minister and at least the rudiments of a General Staff for National Defense.

"In the second place, there is the problem of common activities among the three armed forces, such as medical service, the procurement of communications equipment, the provision of recreational facilities, the procurement and distribution of food and clothing, and many others. If uncoordinated action in these fields is permitted, there are a number of dangers. Competition may occur for supplies, facilities, and essential personnel, with resulting maldistribution and waste. Duplicating facilities may arise, or separate facilities may not be effectively utilized, with resulting waste. And no national economy today can afford any waste, can afford the uneconomical use of either manpower or other resources. In time of war this problem becomes doubly acute.

"The Armed Forces High Command in Germany ignored this second problem at first; as the war progressed it had to recognize it by the very force of circumstances. In Britain a separate purchasing agency for the Army was also given some authority to guide the activities of the other forces. Such steps as were taken came haltingly; they were not too successful. Today the Ministry of National Defense and the Ministry of Supply recognize this as one of their major concerns—to prevent the uneconomical development or utilization of supply and service activities.

"In the third place, the mobilization of national resources to support the armed forces not only vitally affects the three forces themselves but also involves a nation's entire economy. The problem then is not just an armed forces concern but a government concern. In Britain and in Germany new agencies were set up to direct the mobilization of essential national resources for war purposes—in Britain the Ministry of War Production and in Germany the Ministry of Armaments and War Production. Other government agencies were likewise drawn into the direction and control of manpower, agriculture, finance, price control, and rationing.

"National defense then cannot be left organizationally to the armed forces themselves, either separately or under some kind of joint command. It is a problem embracing the totality of government, and so in organization must seek its leadership and its agencies at the very top level of government. This is clearly understood in England and France today; it was partially understood in Germany during World War II."

Seek Uniform Pay Procedures

A joint Army-Navy-Air Force committee has recently been appointed to study pay matters and make recommendations regarding more uniform pay procedures throughout the services.

The Army Finance officers appointed to serve on the committee are Lt. Col. Edmund L. Dlugensky, Maj. William E. Reichenbach, Jr., and Capt. Fred O. LaFavers, Jr. The Navy will be represented by one Naval officer, Comdr. Glenn F. Bruton, and one Marine Corps officer, Col. S. K. Briel.

Members of the committee recently visited the Army Finance Center at St. Louis as a step in surveying the present pay system and facilities of the Army disbursing network. Next week they will visit the Field Branch of the U. S. Navy Bureau of Supplies and Accounts at Cleveland, to observe the Navy's central storage point for master pay records pertaining to their personnel.

Gen. Bradley Reports Next Week

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, USA, will report to the Department of the Army next week to undertake preliminary studies and make visits to a number of field headquarters before actually taking over as Chief of Staff, he announced this week upon relinquishing his duties as Veterans Administrator.

It is generally understood that what one of the veterans organizations once referred to as General Bradley's "Army of Occupation" also will leave the Veterans' Administration and that some of them will probably become associated with the General when he takes over as Chief of Staff. They are: Col. R. T. McDonnell, special assistant to the Administrator, who was AG of the 12th Army; Col. W. F. Magill, president of the Personnel Allocation Board at the VA; Lt. Col. Chester B. Hanson, who was General Bradley's aide overseas and went with him to the VA; Lt. Col. Harry Brown, administrative aide to General Hawley, and Col. T. J. Cross, deputy administrator of the VA in charge of the West Coast Branch.

Asked what his immediate plans are, General Bradley said that he had none, except that his son had asked him to help repair some farm buildings.

On Monday, General Bradley pressed a button in Washington operating a remote-control device which christened in Kansas City a new Wabash Railroad streamliner. In doing so General Bradley said:

"I have had only two jobs in my life. One was, and still is, the U. S. Army. The other was the Wabash Railroad. Before I entered West Point I worked in the Wabash shops in Moberly, Mo. And I didn't dream that the boss ever would ask me to christen his newest train."

Maj. Gen. Carl Raymond Gray, vice president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway System, who will succeed General Bradley as Veterans Administrator will not take over until after 1 Jan. In the meantime Maj. Omer Clark, administrative assistant to General Bradley, will serve as Acting Administrator.

Announcement also was made this week of the resignation of Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, USA-Ret., as chief medical officer of the Veterans Administration. In accepting his resignation, General Bradley wrote:

"Your program, your policies and your intense personal efforts have assured the nation of the finest kind of medical service for its veterans. Through your own integrity of purpose and insistence upon high medical standards, you pioneered in a brilliantly conceived cooperative program between Government and medicine, a program which has brought health and the promise of happier lives to sick and disabled veterans. As a doctor, soldier and administrator, you have served your country and your fellow-men well."

General Gray began his military career as a Captain in the U. S. Army in 1917 and at the time of his discharge in April 1919 held the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

From 1921 to 1938 he served as Colonel, Corps of Engineers Reserves, becoming general manager, Military Railway Service, inactive status on Feb. 1, 1939. He was called into active service on 15 May 1942, subsequently being promoted to Brigadier General and then Major General with which rank he was relieved from active duty in February of 1946. During World War II he served 34 months overseas. From 9 February 1943 to 11 February 1945, he served as Director General, Military Railways, in North Africa, Italy and Southern France. He became Director General, Military Railway Service, European Theatre of Operation, 12 February 1945, serving in that capacity to 24 October 1945.

His awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit with Oak Leaf Cluster, Bronze Star Medal (American); Order of the Crown of Italy, Grand Officer Class (Italian); Knight Commander of the British Empire (Great Britain); Italian War Cross for Merit; Order of the Crown of Belgium, commander class; Legion of Honor, Croix de Guerre with two palms (French); and Army Commendation Ribbon. Campaign ribbons include: Asiatic Pacific, American Theater, and European-African-Middle East (with 6 battle participation stars).

Lolo's Hold No US Men

After an exhaustive 15-month search, the American Graves Registration Service announced this week that it has been "positively established" that no American airmen are being held by the Lolo tribes in China.

Service Reputation at USNA

To establish a foundation of Service reputation for those midshipmen of the Graduating Class "who have contributed most by precept and example," Rear Adm. J. L. Holloway, jr., USN, Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy, has issued the following order authorizing letters of commendation:

"1. A fine service reputation is a matter of deep personal pride to all naval officers. It is founded upon the positive character, moral integrity, and the potential value of an individual for the Service. Aggressive leadership, reliability, initiative, loyalty, and the respect for and obedience to constituted authority . . . these are the very essence of those qualities which develop a moral fibre and contribute to fitness evaluation and service reputation. They are essentially attributes of character developed here at the Naval Academy as a by-product of the daily way of life and are directly reflected in attitude, performance of duty, and military bearing. It can not be over emphasized that utmost attention must be given to the development of these characteristics early in an officer's career.

"2. In order to affirm, and to establish the foundation of service reputation for those midshipmen of the Graduating Class who have contributed most by precept and example to the development of these qualities in the Brigade, the Superintendent will address letters of commendation to them. Copies of these commendatory letters will be made a part of the officer's selection jacket, as recently proposed by the Superintendent and approved by the Navy Department, of each recipient who is commissioned in the Naval Service."

Bills Introduced

S. 1802, Sen. Gurney and H. R. 4548, Rep. Andrews (R-N.Y.). To authorize the President to award the medal of honor to the unknown American who lost his life while serving overseas in the armed forces of the United States during the second World War.

H. R. 4547, Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.). To establish the United States Air Academy at Randolph Field, Texas.

S. 1806, Sen. Gurney. For the relief of Ensign Merton H. Peterson, USNR.

Senator Gurney (R-S.Dak.) also this week introduced departmental bills similar to the House bills contained in the Calendar of Legislation in the 22 Nov. issue of the Army and Navy Journal.

Seek F. O. Triplett

Mr. and Mrs. G. V. Triplett, of Box 81, Manitou Springs, Colo., are seeking information concerning their missing son, Leslie Edward Triplett, who enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force before the entry of the United States into World War II.

He served as a flight officer, navigator, on the RCAF Ferry Command and was reported missing 23 Feb. 1943 while crossing the Atlantic. Mr. and Mrs. Triplett believe he was a prisoner of the Germans and subsequently released. He weighed about 140 pounds, was 5 feet 5 inches tall, had dark brown eyes and light brown hair, and a scar on the back of his right hand.

S. Sgt. Thomas F. St. John, Editor of the Ft. McPherson Reporter, has just returned from the T&E School at Carlisle Barracks, where he completed the course with a Superior rating, and a commendation from the school commandant.

Wednesday afternoon, 19 Nov., 20 "Brownies" of the Girl Scouts from R. L. Hope School in Atlanta, were the guests of Post Commander, Col. G. M. Halleran. During their tour of the Post, they visited the WAC day-room and barracks, HQ Mess, Post Chapel, Officers' Club, and the Post Library. Purpose of the project was an educational visual-aid tour to let these children see how the Army lives. Leaders of this group were Mesdames Frank Fling, T. J. Russell, and Marion Talley, all of Atlanta, Ga.
